EUROPE FACES HUNGER SCARE DURING WINTER

Generosity of Nazis Needed To Prevent Actual Starvation.

CROP SHORTAGES SEEN

U. S. Indicates No Effort To Lift British Blockade Being Contemplated.

By NORMAN B. DEUEL
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—Available information showed today that if Germany is generous this winter Europe may be hungry but will not starve.

Should heavy requisitions be made in conquered territory to feed the German army and the homeland, however, millions will be in dire straits before spring, information here indicated.

In any event vitality will be lowered, fats and vitamins lacking and food luxurious nonexistent throughout the continent.

The latest surveys of the foreign agricultural situation by the agriculture department, released today, were far from optimistic for the Axis powers. They estimated that the 1940 European wheat crop, exclusive of Soviet Russia, would be 20 per cent below that of 1939, and about 11 per cent under the 1933-37 five year average. Another report estimated that Japan's 1940 rice crop would be about 2,500 million pounds short of actual requirements and that a large part of the 1940-41 shortage would have to be met by importing.

Unoccupied France appeared to be in the worst position. With 5,000,000 refugee non-Frenchmen to feed in addition to her own refugee population of 500,000 living in camps, the resources of this agriculturally poorest part of France will be severely strained.

Efforts to obtain American assistance form one of the delicate tasks of France's new ambassador, Gaston Henry-Haye. He has graphically painted the picture of distress which is his country's lot, but there has been no indication that the United States will remove combat zone restrictions or seek to persuade Britain to lift the food blockade.

Meanwhile a $50,000,000 congressional appropriation for European relief remains almost unused, and Red Cross millions can be used only in England. China

Underground River Course Traced By Radio Transmitter

An ultra high frequency radio transmitter encased in an eight-inch rubber ball and producing an audio oscillated tone was placed in the underground stream in the Seneca caverns.

The receiving set, one-half mile north of the cavern entrance picked up the signals clearly as the stream flow carried the "radio ball" an estimated 1.1 miles. Experimenters said the test strengthened the belief that the underground stream flows into the famous "Blue Hole" of Castalia, a huge and historic spring from which 5,000 gallons of water flow each hour.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The German radio reported in a broadcast of a Rome dispatch heard here that an Italian-Hungarian economic treaty was signed today after two weeks' negotiation.

'Big Week' Arrives, 10,000 In County Prepare to Register Wednesday for Possible Military Service

WEDNESDAY is the big day for young men in Mansfield, Richland county, and all over the nation. There has never been another day like it in all American peacetime history.

More than 16,000,000 men from 21 to 36, including about 10,000 in Mansfield and Richland county, will go to their voting places to register for selective military service. No man will be exempt from registration if he is within the age limits.

Men who are ill and unable to go to registration booths may have a competent person register for them. Hospitals will have special registrars for the sick.

Men who are away from home Wednesday may register at the nearest booth or, if they are in an isolated section, within five days after returning home. Wilful evaders are liable to penalties up to five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The appointed and volunteer registrars who will work at the county's 92 registration places will receive their final instructions from the county election board at a "school" as 7:30 p. m. today in the common pleas courtroom at the courthouse.

Supplies, including 150 registration cards and booklets giving information on the draft will be distributed to the registrars after the session tonight.

Registration places will open at 7 a. m. Wednesday and close at 9 p. m. Additional registrars will go to work late in the afternoon and evening when a rush is expected.

Registrants will be required to answer about 16 questions concerning their name, age, birth

PARK'S BEAUTY DRAWS 20,000, JAMS TRAFFIC

Record Crowd Visits Mohican Sunday; Cars Tied Up For Five Hours.

The scenic beauty of Mohican state forest, dressed in its fall garment of mottled hues, attracted thousands of nature lovers who took advantage of the perfect October weather to visit the park yesterday.

It was the largest crowd in the park's history to wander over the wooded trails and highways. Traffic on roads leading to the park was jammed for miles around and additional officers were on duty to assist in untangling the snarls.

James Stevenson, state forest ranger estimated the crowd to visit the park between noon and dusk at more than 20,000.

For more than five hours in the afternoon and evening, automobiles jammed the roads bumper to bumper and the main street of the little village of Loudonville looked like New York's Fifth avenue at noon.

Traffic lights were turned off to speed up the movement of the cars and three officers assisted by state highway patrolmen directed traffic at intersections.

Officers of the Mansfield substation of the highway patrol said the most heavily travelled road was route 3 (to Columbus) where automobiles were jammed for two miles on either side of the city. Routes 97 and 39 south of Mansfield were both jammed, they reported, and a constant stream of cars flowed in and out of park entrances.

Stevenson said that in addition to sightseers and nature lovers, artists and camera enthusiasts were in evidence throughout the valley.

LEAVE ORIENT

Americans Book Passage on Ship Sailing Saturday.

TOKYO—(AP)—A large contingent of Americans booked passage for home today on the Nitta Maru, which sails Saturday, as the American exodus from the Orient continued under the advice of the U. S. state department.

A large group of wives and children already is on the high seas, headed for home, and the state department's announced intention to send special liners to remove other Americans caused a fresh wave of consternation in official circles here.

The foreign office spokesman, reversing his usual role, questioned American newspapermen closely at his press conference regarding the number of nationals leaving, but made no comment.

Ceremonies Mark Start Of New NYA Project

McVey post of the American Legion yesterday joined with NYA officials in dedicating the site at Charles Mill reservoir for construction of a resident training center for boys between the ages of 18 and 25 who will be given vocational, but non-military training in industrial arts in connection with the national defense program. At the left is Betty Wehinger, McVey post drum corps majorette in action. At right, R. B. Gardner, past state commander of the Legion, and Benjamin P. Groves, Columbus, state director of NYA work projects turning the first shovel-full of ground.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NYA CENTER

Crew of 40 Workers Moves In Today After Ceremonies at Site Sunday.

Ground-breaking ceremonies and dedication of a flag pole at Charles Mill reservoir yesterday afternoon by National Youth administration officials and McVey Post of the American Legion signalled the way for construction of the first NYA resident training center to be established in the state.

Work got under way this morning with a crew of 40 youths between the ages of 18 and 25 starting construction of the first of 18 buildings that will ultimately house between 200 and 300 boys.

The site is located on U. S. route 30 just east of the reservoir on a 20-acre lake front plot.

Benjamin P. Groves, Columbus, NYA project director, spoke at the dedication yesterday and R. B. Gardner, past state commander of the American Legion turned the first shovel full of dirt for the camp which will house and train the youth in vocational and industrials arts in connection with the national defense program.

Groves described NYA's joint

In another part of town the Republican caucus, first in 22 years was held. Of the six attending, four professed themselves Democrats. Three of the Democrats got the only Republican nominations.

CONGRESS SITS

Little Action Possible With Many Members Absent.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Despite the absence of many members, senate and house scheduled session today due to the stalemate over recessing for the general election campaign.

The senate planned to meet only long enough to take a recess until Thursday. However, before that action is taken, the chamber may receive for confirmation the nomination of Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra as director of selective service.

The house, meanwhile, decided to clear its slate of several minor matters—provided it musters a quorum.

SHIELD STAFF ON JOB AGAIN

Workers on Old Paper Recall Fun and Labors of Past at Malabar Reunion.

By GEORGE SATTLER

The presses of the old Mansfield Shield were humming again yesterday in the minds of 20 former employes of the Shield who gathered at Malabar, Louis Bromfield's farm, for their first reunion since the paper ceased publication 21 years ago.

Murders, political campaigns, scoops scored over the old Mansfield News, and countless pranks by members of the staff were recalled as edition after edition "went to press."

"There never was and never will be another newspaper like the old Mansfield Shield," were the words of Wellington Leonard, editor of the paper back in the old days, on whose shoulders fell the heavy responsibility of keeping the staff in order.

"We had more fun than any group of newspaper people ever had," he said. The others nodded in agreement.

That was the signal that started off the stories, for throughout the afternoon and evening "the good old days" were recalled with a vengeance.

"There is a certain man present here today," Henry G. Brunner.

CAMPAIGN HITS FAST TEMPO IN CITY THIS WEEK

Dems to Rally Tuesday Night at School; Willkie Stop G. O. P. Highlight.

Political activities will speed up this week in Richland county, with each major party scheduling at least one big rally and a number of community meetings.

The stand-out feature of the week's program will be Wendell L. Willkie's rear platform talk in the city at 10 a. m. Wednesday. The Republican presidential candidate's special train over the Erie railroad will stop just east of the North Main street crossing. It will be in the city at least 20 minutes.

High-lighting the Democrats' program for the week will be a rally Tuesday night at Senior high school auditorium where John McSweeney, candidate for U. S. senator; Martin L. Davey, candidate for governor; State Auditor Joseph Ferguson, and other district and county candidates will speak.

The meeting will open at 8 p. m. with music by the Mansfield Senior high school band. Davey will speak later in the evening after an address at Bucyrus.

Democratic leaders said John Cudahy, former ambassador to Belgium, and Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia will speak at later rallies in the city. Cudahy will be here Oct. 22 and Gov. Rivers on Oct. 29.

Republicans will also hold a rally Tuesday night, with Don MacVey of Leroy and two prominent colored speakers from Columbus scheduled for talks.

The colored speakers probably will be Cora Jordan White and

TIMKEN DIES

Head of Roller Bearing Co. Taken By Pneumonia.

CANTON—(AP)—Henry H. Timken, chairman of the Timken Roller Bearing Co., died today of pneumonia. He was 72.

Timken, whose father developed the Timken roller bearing and a revolutionary carriage spring, was active in Republican affairs and was a substantial contributor to the party's campaign. He was former chairman of the Hercules Motor Corp. of Canton.

Timken also was active in several banks, and was noted here for his philanthropies. His latest gift was the $1,250,000 Timken vocational school, opened last year.

The industrialist was born in St. Louis, April 19, 1868. His father, Henry Timken, was an inventor and builder of carriages and wagons, and the son joined the concern. They opened the Timken Roller Bearing Axle Co., in Canton in 1902.

JAPAN PLEDGED TO HELP AXIS

Possibility of War Reverses For Partners Admitted.

TOKYO—(INS)—Japan today was pledged to come to the aid of Germany and Italy if the Axis powers sustained reverses in their war with Britain.

The pledge was made by Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsouka before a gathering of Japanese celebrating the signing of the German-Italian-Japanese tripartite military alliance.

"If the war takes an unfavorable turn for Germany and Italy, Japan must stand ready to give them every help," Matsouka said.

FDR Asks Community Chest Help; Willkie Warns of Recklessness

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Calling on Americans to "prove your good faith in good works," President Roosevelt appealed to the nation last night to support the 1940 mobilization for human needs, annual fund-raising campaign of the country's Community Chest endeavors.

The chief executive, in a broadcast, laid emphasis on the significance which attached to the attainment of the campaign's objectives in the present international state of affairs.

"When we join together in serving our local community," he said, "we add strength to our national community, we help to fortify the structure of our whole union. That form of fortification—that spiritual fortification—is not to be dismissed lightly by those in other lands who believe that nations can live by force alone.

"Human kindness has never weakened the stamina or softened the fibre of a free people. A nation does not have to be cruel in order to be tough. The vigorous expression of our American community spirit is truly important."

Mr. Roosevelt declared that there was need for "an intensification of our efforts" this year as never before. Then, in another reference to

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, ENROUTE TO SYRACUSE, N. Y.—(AP)—Wendell Willkie said today he was concerned that President Roosevelt "by a reckless statement may do something or say something that drives this great peaceful country into war at a time when it is wholly unprepared."

"We must, if we possibly can keep this great land at peace," the Republican presidential nominee told a cheering audience at Schenectady and Amsterdam, N. Y.

"Taking this country into war when it is inadequately prepared is worse than betrayal of the country. It is just taking men to slaughter and to murder," he added.

Willkie, beginning a two-day campaign tour across upstate New York, termed production the greatest need in creating a strong defense and called for the election of men who understood production.

In a statement issued before his Schenectady talk he made two suggestions for speeding up the defense program: quick decisions on the type of planes and tanks to be built and "relent-

Intentions of Soviet Troops Remain Secret

Help For Turkey or Share in Spoils With Axis Seen as Possibilities; Turks Feverishly Construct Bulgarian Line Forts

(By Associated Press)

Russia's reported massing of Red army troops, planes and guns along the Soviet-Rumanian frontier posed a mystery today as official circles agreed the next few days might tell whether Europe's conflict is destined to overrun the Balkans.

Presumably the spread of war would arise from a Rome-Berlin Axis thrust aimed at Turkey and the strategic Dardanelles.

The Turks, aided by British engineers, were reported "feverishly constructing fortifications on the Turkish-Bulgarian frontier."

Greece and Turkey were said to be closely cooperating, and the Turkish press defiantly reiterated a challenge that "2,000,000 Turkish bayonets" await any Axis attempt at invasion.

Both Germany and Russia were reported strengthening their military positions in the area near the mouth of the Danube river, which flows into the Black sea. But Russia's role was clouded with uncertainty. The conjectures were paramount:

1. Would Russia, as Turkey's friend and with her own stake in southeast Europe involved, oppose a joint German-Italian onslaught?

2. Or did the presence of Russia's Red armies merely signify that Russia was preparing to share in the spoils—as she did in Poland after the German blitzkrieg had crushed the Poles?

Foreign military attaches estimated that the Russian army and air force, poised less than 500 miles from the Dardenelles, was greatly superior in numbers to German troops now stationed in Rumania or en route there.

In the battle of Britain, 5,000 troops with picks, spades, ropes and pneumatic drills began clearing up the wreckage of London after the empire capital's most terrible night assault of the war.

German bomber pilots returning from the attack said fires were visible as far away as the mouth of the Thames.

The raiders reportedly dropped a total of 771,000 pounds of explosives on London, Liverpool and other English cities in the last 24 hours, and heavy new attacks were launched this morning.

With rescue squads still digging in the London ruins for dead and wounded, a government communique said "it is feared that the number of persons killed and injured is somewhat larger than during recent night attacks."

At least 15 persons were killed and 20 wounded when heavy bombs exploded head-on against two air-raid shelters in two northeast English towns.

Today's "invasion weather:" Heavy mist covered straight of Dover, blotting out sea and sky.

Hitler's high command—while giving no hint of German plans in southeast Europe—reported Nazi activity for the first time in the vicinity of Britain's key stronghold of Gibraltar.

A long-range German bomber attacked and "destroyed" an armed merchant ship west of Cadiz, Spain, in the Gibraltar area, the high command said.

A clue to destructive chaos inflicted by RAF bombers against German objectives was seen in a reported broadcast by the German-controlled Dutch

DEBRIS: London Cleans Up After Terrific German Raid

LONDON—(UP)—German bombers slashed at southern England today as 5,000 army engineers took charge of a big-scale drive to clear up the debris of 38 days of incessant aerial attack on London. Nazi warplanes vainly sought to battle their way up the Thames estuary, power-dived in a bombing attack on an east coast town and sent Londoners to shelter during two daylight air alarms.

But the army engineers, called from active service, and many thousands of unemployed were recruited into clean-up squadrons in defiance of the continued aerial attacks.

Piling into trucks, the civilians, armed with picks and shovels, went to the worst hit areas and there, under the army men, began removing debris, demolishing buildings which threatened to collapse, and salvaging bricks, wood and other materials fit for re-use.

They found more wreckage as the result of an all night raid in which the Germans showered high explosive bombs from deadly new "bomb baskets," all over the city and in the provinces.

Apartment houses, tenements, private homes, business premises, air raid shelters and one convent had been struck and the casualty list had shot up tragically.

The new containers had burst

PREPARED: Turks And Greeks Mass Half-Million On Border

LONDON—(INS)—Half a million Turkish and Greek troops today were reported massing on the Bulgarian frontier prepared to resist any surprise German or Italian thrust into the Balkans. The Turkish troops, totalling 400,000 men, were reportedly concentrating in Turkish Thrace while 120,000 Greek troops were being massed in Grecian Thrace.

Reports from Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia indicated growing alarm in those countries over Germany's military move in Rumania.

Neutral diplomatic observers in those countries, according to reports received in London, were convinced that Germany intends to use Rumania as a base for an Axis drive into the Balkans, aimed ultimately at a pincer move against the British in the Near East.

Meanwhile, great interest was evidenced in reports that Soviet Russia was massing troops on the Rumanian frontier and mounting heavy artillery along the Pruth river facing Rumania. The British felt certain that Stalin does not view with favor Germany's entry into Rumania or the threat against Turkey. British officials hoped that if and when Germany moves against Turkey it will be possible to bring Russia into the conflict on the side of the Allies.

The London Daily Express said fears of an Italian attack on Greece are "mounting hourly," and that all Italians in Greece have been warned to leave immediately.

Meanwhile, Istanbul dispatches told of the Turkish press issuing a general warning that Russia will not stand idly by if Germany attempts to gain control of the Dardanelles.

Accompanied by their staffs, Britain's military and naval attaches in Bucharest left the Ru-

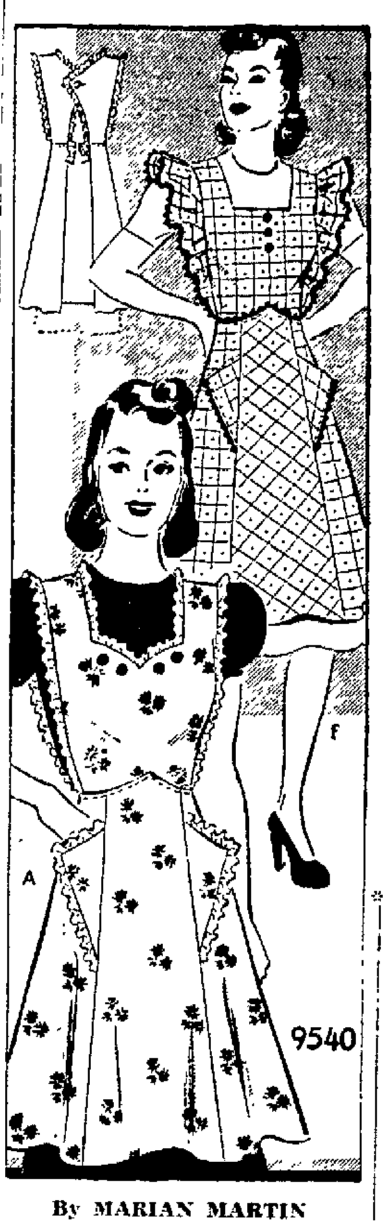
High Style Fashions, Fancy Work



By MARIAN MARTIN

There's no need to say, "Please excuse my apron" when you answer the doorbell in Pattern 9540. Designed by Marian Martin, this style is gay feminity itself. It's such easy fun to make, too! A buttoning at the back neck keeps the whole garment firmly in place. The neckline may be squared V-shape or just a plain square. Notice the flattering "upped" front waist-seam and the nice skirt fullness given by the front panel which may be straight grain or on the bias. Novel pockets and ruffling or ric-rac edging look decorative.

Pattern 9540 may be ordered only in sizes small (32-34), medium (36-38) and large (40-42). Small size, apron A, requires 2½ yards 35 inch fabric and 41 yards ruffling; apron B, 2½ yards 35 inch fabric and 7⅝ yards ric-rac.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

SQUEEZING HIM TWICE

THERE IS just one type of squeeze on which it is possible to develop two tricks by means of the squeezing process. That is what is known as the "progressive squeeze." It can be executed only when one particular opponent is in the unfortunate position of having to protect his side in three suits, his partner having no cards which can help. When he has to choose a discard to a particular trick, he sets up one trick for you, and you then use that suit to squeeze him again between the two remaining suits.

If South played at No Trumps, and on the first eight tricks raked in three clubs, three diamonds and two hearts, he would have a progressive squeeze if the following is the situation remaining.

♥ Q 6
♦ 5
♣ 3

♠ Q 6 3
♥ 3
♦ None
♣ 2

N.
W. E.
S.

♠ A
♥ J 10
♦ 10 9
♣ None

♠ K
♥ 5
♦ J 8
♣ 10

Here South seems able to win only three of the remaining five tricks, one in clubs, one in diamonds and one in hearts. But he takes all five of them because of the operation of the progressive squeeze. When he leads his club 10, East is up against the impossible job of finding a good discard, as anything he throws off will set up one trick for South and the latter can then use that suit to squeeze East again.

If East tosses away his spade A on the club South plays his spade K next, and East is forced to discard a heart or diamond, in either case building up a trick for South. If he throws away a heart, then the heart Q and 6 are played, the latter squeezing East between the spade and diamonds. If he throws off a diamond, the J and 8 of that suit are played, the second squeezing East between the spade and hearts.

It is possible for such a squeeze to come on the very first trick, and reportedly happened once. East had four hearts, four spades and five diamonds, and had to discard on a club lead. If he picked one of the major suits, he would set up a fourth-round trick in the dummy, so he tossed a diamond. That set up a fifth-round diamond for South, who then used diamonds to squeeze East between the two majors.

Divorce Laws Troublesome

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

As this column has often pointed out, a person may be legally married in one state and enjoy single blessedness in the state next door. Children may be legitimate in one state, cross an imaginery boundary line and find themselves illegitimate and incapable of inheriting property.

In the interests of what we still call Morals, the National Divorce Reform league has pointed that it's legally possible for an American citizen to have forty-nine wives at one and the same time and yet not be a bigamist.

Humorously enough, the league calls this imaginery wholesale marrier Mr. Joe Lothario, and will present his case to the different state legislatures in January, along with its proposed reform of the divorce laws.

The marrying Mr. Lothario, whose career is traced by the Divorce Reform league, reaches the age of 21 in South Carolina and promptly marries a local girl. South Carolina is chosen as the stepping-off state in Mr. Lothario's career because it's the only state in the union that outlaws divorce altogether. Naturally the climate and the lovely old houses have no charm for this gentleman. He sets out on his travels and arrives in the state of Maine to get his first divorce after a year's residence, following which he marries a Maine girl.

South Carolina refuses to recognize a Maine divorce, so he moves on to New Hampshire to divorce his Maine wife, and marry a New Hampshire girl, and so on from state to state. The National Divorce Reform league states that throughout his various matrimonial excursions the imaginery Mr. Lothario will have to be pretty careful not to retrace his steps and wander back into one of the states in which he has already been divorced and married. Not only that he must avoid the embarrassement of meeting his earlier wives, but also such officers of the law as might be waiting to nab him for desertion, abandonment or non-support.

If the necessities of railroad or bus travel won't permit him to pass through the states in which he, as yet, has not been married, he'll just have to charter a plane, flying high, wide and handsome over those states in which matrimonial troubles may be awaiting him. But all this takes time, and Mr. Lothario, if he married at 21 in South Carolina, will be eighty-three years old, before he accumulates the full complement of forty-eight legal wives.

Doubtless by this time Lothario has become so accustomed to saying "I do. I do. I do" that he simply can't imagine life without the old reliable matrimonial marathon.

So he takes his last excursion to the one spot of the United States where he can marry wife No. 49, which is the District of Columbia—favorite spot for honeymooners. But as the eighty-three year old bridegroom by this time has earned the title of "Grandpa Lothario," he'll be forced to fly to the nation's capital and live there for a year before he can complete the chain of marriages that binds him to No. 49, in strictly legal bonds.

In Washington he can finally settle down at 84 for the rest of his life, secure in the knowledge that he has a wife in every state in the union, and one in the national capital, and is still, according to our laws, no bigamist.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

At last Philip Veritzen wished an answer to what he was saying. Lillian and I realized that as he paused and looked directly at us with expectant inquiry in his eyes. But I found myself incapable of speech, for his admissions of the things he had plotted against Mary to prevent her marriage to his son, Noel, were so infuriating to me that I found myself choking with rage. I made an infinitesimal gesture to Lillian. She caught my cue and spoke quickly.

"Oh! yes, Phil," she said with carefully planned nonchalance. "Your delight when Prince Georges caught Mary's fancy, and Noel found temporary consolation in Olina was perfectly clear to us, as were your frantic efforts to keep those relations permanent. And when they sailed away together, bethrothed, after a reconciliation between Noel and Mary, you were fit to be tied. But your nimble brain didn't stay idle long. You soon found a most willing tool in Avis Arlen."

At her naming of Avis Arlen, the mask of his face shifted ever so slightly, and he croaked hoarsely "Avis—"then was silent as suddenly.

"Yes, Avis Arlen," Lillian went on inexorably. "I confess, that did surprise me, Phil. At least, in wishing to have Olina as a possible daughter-in-law, you showed good taste. But to plan that Noel should marry a--a- well Katie could best define her. She'd call her 'dot boonch of soup greens' and flatter her with the epithet."

This last barb was too sharp for even Philip Veritzen's equanimity. He winced perceptibly, and broke into quick speech.

"I did not plan that he should marry her," he said explosively.

"Well: you certainly made noises that sounded like it," Lillian retorted airily. "And you surely kept up the good work in other directions. Planning to give Mary a year's study in Paris when you knew the bethrothal of Olina and Georges had been broken, and that Georges was spending much of his time in Paris. That distinctly wasn't clubby.

"I'll have to slip to it you, Phil," she went on relentlessly "You surely do a thorough job when you start out. No tiniest pebble in your path remains right side up. And then you had a change of heart, turned about face, gave your consent to the marriage, and were perfectly wonderful about it."

Philip Veritzen's eyes leaped to mine significantly, and I could have strangled myself for the burning flush that covered my cheeks. The memory of that night in my little study when I wrested the promise concerning Noel and Mary from Noel's father, and my motive was totally misunderstood by him, has always been a humiliation to me.

"You probably know perfectly well from Mrs. Graham that she alone was responsible for the change in my decision," he said sullenly.

"I knew nothing from her," Lillian retorted crisply. "But I have eyes and reasoning powers, and I deducted at the time what you have just told me. But the truth remains that you were perfectly scrumptious about the marriage until Olina came back here. Your actions since then, as you very well know, admit of two interpretations, the one of testing Mary, which you gave us at the close of that rehearsal, and another, most infamous, that you were trying to part Noel and Mary, in order to have him marry Olina."

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, October 15.

Moderate progress may be looked for in all business and workaday activities, judging by the mutual and lunar aspects bearing rule. Vital issues are at stake and may be best turned into highly successful returns by flexibility, bold strokes of ingenuity and a willingness to yield a point or change plans or methods where that seems advisable.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a thrilling, perhaps hectic year, with vital issues coming to the front with suddenness and calling for quick decisions. This may involve some giving way from old established ideas, plans and objectives.

A child born on this day may have many novel, advanced and sensational ideals, with much creative ability and originality, supported by sound judgment.

GLOVES GROW LONGER.

Snug-fitting bracelet-length sleeves . . . loose-fitting three-quarter length sleeves . . . just-above-the-elbow sleeves—with any and all of these smart dress sleeves a longer glove is the correct thing. And American glove makers have figured out that the eight-button length is the most practical for all these different sleeve styles. That means eight inches from your wrist up your arm . . . and it's a length that fits over snug sleeves or under loose ones.

KNOT RECORDS LEFT BY INCAS

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. —(U.P.)— The Incas must have had some knotty financial problems, according to the "quipu" on exhibition in the University of North Carolina library.

The quipu is a knotted record of the Inca civilization, and although anthropologists assume it might have pertained to financial problems, they admit it might mean almost anything.

It consist of 31 different types of small ropes of a dozen different colors and no two alike, containing a hundred different kind of knots. Each knot is supposed to mean something, but just what is a mystery.

The quipu was donated by John Wise of New York, collector of Peruvian art objects, and is valued at $500. It resembles nothing so much as a Boy Scout's collection of knots although on close examination it is apparent such knots are unknown today.

Many scientists have studied this and similar quipus, but never have been able to translate the quipu or to state accurately what the Inca civilization was trying to record.

Some believe, however, that accounts of weddings and funerals were recorded by the use of knots although it is known that the Peruvians kept records of numbers in this form.

HARDLY HIDDEN

Police Say Table Top Poor Place to Hide Money.

COLUMBUS, O. —(INS)— Smart burglars know just where to look for housewives' purses, Columbus detectives have decided after a careful survey.

From burglars who have been caught, the detectives learned that there are four places on the robbers' list to look first for a woman's purse after gaining entrance to a residence. They were enumerated thus:

First, in the buffet; second, on top of the dining room table; third, on top of the refrigerator, and fourth, on the kitchen table.

Columbus police kept track of the number of cases during August wherein the burglar walked into a home and found a purse in a likely place. Money, which was contained in 168 purses stolen during that time, totaled $2,410.36.

FORGETS BOOTS

Texan Discovers Why Cowboy Footwear's Made That Way.

FORT WORTH, Tex.— (U.P.) — Cowboy boots whose odd shape somewhat mystifies some people were not built up by accident.

Their uses are many. Every odd bulge, every layer of leather has its purpose.

None should know better than J. H. Wilson, a furniture dealer here. Recently he went to his ranch a few miles from here. Usually Wilson wears boots to the ranch. On this occasion he didn't.

He stepped out to unlatch the gate and a coiled rattlesnake struck. Leather boots would have deflected the rattler's fang.

Q. & A. On the Draft

(By International News Service)

Q. If I am inducted or volunteer under the draft will I have a chance to get a commission as an officer?

A. Yes. The army needs more officers and has announced it will select certain capable men and train them for commissions.

Q. If I am a college student, am I automatically deferred from service?

A. No. You must specifically request it and then you will be deferred only until the end of this school year.

Q. What if I have flat feet, weak eyes, or some other minor physical defect?

A. If physicians decide your defect is sufficient to prevent your engaging in active service, you will be placed in Class 1-B, "available for limited service," and probably never called.

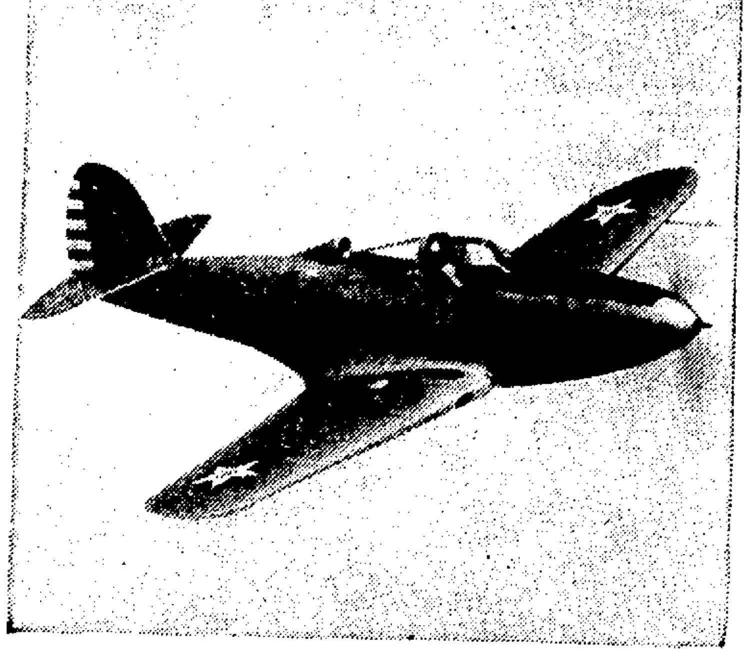
Q. What if I have a disease or am otherwise ill?

A. You will go in Class 1-B, but as soon as you are well you must report to your local board which may decide then to move you into the "immediately available" category.

Q. If I don't believe in war can I claim to be a conscientious objector?

A. Not necessarily. You must prove you are an objector "by reason of religious training and religious belief."

New Fighter Plane In Tests



First of the new 400-mile-an-hour Airacobras, believed the equal in speed and fire power of any interceptor-pursuit planes now possessed by the Germans, has been tested at Buffalo, N. Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"Spring Parade." Screenplay by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson from story by Ernst Marischka. Directed by Henry Koster. Principals: Deanna Durbin, Robert Cummings, Mischa Auer, Butch and Buddy, Anne Gwynne, Henry Stephenson, S. Z. Sakall, Samuel S. Hinds, Allyn Joslyn, Reginald Denny.

* * *

A little Austrian peasant girl comes singing over the hill with a goat in tow. She's on her way to the fair to sell the goat. And there she has her fortune told: her lover, the little leaflet tells her, will be found in Vienna; he will be an artist; he will "hit her with a stick."

And strangely enough, before she knows it she's on her way to Vienna. The boy (Cummings) she meets there turns out to be an artist—not in oils but in music. And before very long after some misunderstandings and some complications arising from a note sent to the Emperor, there they are together, happily united.

It's a slim story, you see, Cinderella retold to the strains of Viennese waltzes, and retold almost as frankly as the legend was revived in Deanna's "First Love." But it's such a delightful story, as told here, as you rarely see. It has the charm of fantasy and the lilt of a waltz, seasoned with rare comedy and the famed "touch" of Director Koster and Producer Joe Pasternak.

Deanna continues to "grow up" gracefully, with a poise and acting ability you wouldn't have suspected from the youngster of "Three Smart Girls," and her singing is better than ever. Auer has a few moments of comedy but in that department the refugee actor Sakall as the baker who "didn't did it," swipes the pastry. The up-and-coming Cummings makes a lively hero, and Stephenson, particularly in his audience with Deanna, puts the Emperor in a very human niche.

"A Dispatch From Reuter's." screenplay by Milton Krims from story by Valentine Williams and Wolfgang Wilhelm. Directed by William Dieterle, Principals: Edward G. Robinson, Edna Best, Eddie Albert, Albert Basserman, Gene Lockhart, Otto Kruger, Nigel Bruce, Montagu Love, James Stephenson.

This latest in the series of Warner "screen biographies" has the distinction of its predecessors as a faithful dramatic narrative of an important man.

Julius Reuter (Robinson) grew from a lad who was impatient with distances into a man who turned this impatience into a space-spanning business with carrier pigeons. When spreading telegraph facilities made the pigeon service unnecessary, Reuter hit upon the idea of using the telegraph for the speedy transmission of news—news which, in his philosophy, belonged to all the people as fast as it could be brought to them.

The film is the story of his struggle to "sell" the new idea to London's papers; of his temporary set-back at the hands of rivals who liked his idea enough to attempt freezing him out; of his successful counter-attack and triumph. This comes in a dramatic climax revolving about the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, a tragedy first told in England by Reuter's service and precipitating a parliamentary discussion of Reuter reliability. (The name, as the picture insists, is Roy-ter, not Rooter.)

GLAMOUR GIRLS ON VICE SQUAD

London Uses Feminine Sleuths to Combat War-Time Vice Dens In City.

LONDON — (U.P.) — Vice dens, which have grown in London as a result of the war, are to be cleaned up by glamour girls.

Not the glamour girls of the stage and beauty chorus, but girl detectives, who will wear smart tailor-made suits, silk stockings and high-heeled shoes.

Scotland Yard has decided that women are the best people to look after the confidence tricksters and West End hotel and bottle party crooks which have become a menace to service men on leave.

Twelve of London's smartest policewomen will act as "duty pals" to the girls during their training. They will take them to big stores, hotel vestibules and railway stations to pick up hints.

Each detective will receive from $10 to $20 a week, plus a generous allowance to enable her to dress smartly so that there is nothing about her to suggest "police."

"Cosmetic allowance" also will be made to pay for the best beauty aids.

Vice squads of women police are also being formed in the cities and towns to protect the new soldier and munition worker.

Seven Hurt In Richland Area Traffic Over Week-End

NINE DEATHS RECORDED ON STATE ROADS

Five Injured, One Seriously, In Three Accidents Near Bucyrus.

Despite perfect October weather that jammed Richland county highways, death took a holiday in the county over the week-end, although seven persons were injured in traffic accidents in the district.

At least nine automobile fatalities were recorded in the state, although thousands of motorists took to the highways under a warm autumn sun.

Most seriously injured in the Mansfield district ws Mrs. B. F. Hoover, 70, of Sulphur Springs.

She is in Bucyrus City hospital suffering from chest injuries, suffered last night when the automobile in which she was riding with her husband sideswiped a machine driven by Miss Mildred Schwab of near Bucyrus, a half mile north of U. S. route 30-N on route 598.

Miss Schwab's mother received an eye injury. She was treated and released.

In another accident Saturday night four miles south of Bucyrus on route 4, Mrs. Eva Lewis, 33, of Monnett, and her small daughter, Mary were injured, when a car driven by Ralph Wise, R. D. 3, Bucyrus, went out of control and turned over in a ditch.

Mrs. Lewis is in Bucyrus City hospital suffering from a head injury. The child was bruised. Wise escaped injury.

Mrs. Frederick C. Schnable, Bucyrus, suffered an injured ankle and her three-year-old grandson was bruised when they fell from a moving automobile driven by the child's mother, Mrs. Ellwood Stansberry, four miles east of Bucyrus.

The accident occurred, it was reported, when Mrs. Schnable mistook the door handle for the window release and turned it, pitching her and the child, whom she was holding, to the pavement. Both were treated at City hospital.

Two women were treated for injuries received yesterday afternoon when cars driven by William F. Baque, 63, of Norwalk, and Herbert D. Mathews, 55, Bryan, collided at an intersection on U. S. route 30 three miles east of Mifflin.

Mrs. Bessie Cartwright, 57, Norwalk, riding with Baque, and Mrs. Bard Mathews, 57, Bryan, both received cuts and bruises.

Victims of automobile accidents in other parts of the state were William Netz, 19, Hiram college junior, on route No. 28 west of Hiram; Richard Haynes, 8, Toledo, who ran in front of an automobile; Robert Shaffer, 28, Swanton, of injuries in a collision Thursday near Toledo, Margaret Morgan, 18, Akron, of injuries in an accident south of Akron; Earl A. Sears, 34, Los Angeles, Calif., in an accident north of Lima; Mrs. J. L. Maugans, Columbus, in a three-car collision west of Reynoldsburg; Drena Rae Jones, 3, Wooster, when she fell out of a moving car and was struck by a passing vehicle.

Clarence Matusak, 36, Fremont, pedestrian was injured fatally last night when struck by an automobile driven by Bernard Koch, 25, Toledo.

There were two traffic fatalities in the Cleveland area. William R. Rothkopf, 31, was injured fatally when his car struck a tree in Richmond Heights. Frank Logan, 50, was killed when his car collided with a tractor-trailer outfit near Painesville.

Durbin Charges Law Violations On Sign Boards

LIMA —INS—Charging violation of the law prohibiting circulation of unsigned political literature, Francis Durbin, Democratic nominee for congressman-at-large, today called upon the 88 Ohio county prosecutors to investigate the placing of anti-third term posters on billboards.

"These posters are signed only by so-called 'Democrats for Willkie,'" said Durbin, "and we want to know who those people are and where they are getting their money."

Durbin said he would ask that question of the Republican presidential nominee, Wendell Willkie, when he returns to Ohio this week on campaign tour.

There are more than 800 of the billboards bearing a picture of "Uncle Sam" with thumbs turned down on a third term, the Lima Democratic leader said.

He especially called upon the Lucas county prosecutor, Thomas J. O'Connor, to conduct an investigation and urged those in other counties to do likewise.

RE-ASSIGNED

WASHINGTON —AP— The department of state has assigned John K. Davis of Wooster, O., consul general at Dublin, Ireland, to duty in the department.

Up and Down THE STREET

Sunday's beautiful weather brought out the birds like a spring day, but they were meeting in flocks to start the annual trip south. Thousands of bluebirds, meadowlarks, and cowbirds were seen yesterday afternoon in fields southwest of the city. They flitted about restlessly, occasionally breaking into song. As evening approached flocks of them took to the air and headed south. Veteran observers predict that the mass movement at this season indicates cold weather is just around the corner.

Strangest shipment of goods to enter Mansfield today probably went to County Game Protector C. I. Kimmel. A truck stopped off at his office this noon and left Kimmel 19 raccoons, which will be set free in the county as a part of the state conservation program. The truck arrived from the State Division of Conservation and Natural Resources' raccoon farm at Milan with a load of 247 raccoons to be taken to other parts of the state.

Sam Frankel, proprietor of the Mansfield Plate Glass company, was chuckling to himself today and wondering why a Toledo firm, which occasionally forwards him sales tips, didn't recognize his name. Frankel received a letter a couple days ago telling him that a large apartment building was to be erected here and that he might be able to swing the glass business if he called on the owner, Sam Frankel. The firm apparently didn't know that Frankel was putting up the building himself.

Who said there was nothing in common between the Young and Old? J. A. Young, telegrapher for the Pennsylvania railroad company, has lived at 277 West Fourth street for about nine years. It is a double house and recently another family moved into the other side of the house, and the other family was named Old, Charles Old. So now the Youngs and Olds have a house and yard in common.

FOUR INJURED

Equipment Blamed For Blast at Chemical Plant.

CHARLESTON, W. Va.—(UP)—Officials of the Union Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corp. plant at South Charleston today blamed equipment failure for an explosion which injured four men.

E. C. McAllister, 42, of Garret's Bend in Lincoln county, and E. C. Reed, 37, Spring Hill, were severely burned in the blast yesterday while the other two victims suffered minor injuries.

The explosion occurred at the Vinylite unit in the plant. Although the exact cause of the blast has not been determined, officials said it probably was due to a minor defect in equipment which allowed gas to escape into the open.

The fire which followed the explosion was quickly extinguished.

WAGE ROOF ON HOUR LAW SET

$200-a-Month Man May Work More Than 40 Hours Per Week In New Set-up.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A $200 salary monthly has been set up by the wage-hour administration as one of the yardsticks in revised regulations governing the exemption of executive, administrative, professoinal, retail trade and outside sales employes from the hour restrictions of the labor standards law.

The new regulations mean, in effect, that persons who come within the official definition of certain of these classes need not be paid overtime for work in excess of 40 hours a week if they receive a regular salary of $200 or higher.

The revised rules, however, do not apply to persons earning $200 a month or more whose work does not come under these special classifications.

The rules are effective Oct. 24 when 40 hours becomes the standard work week for all workers covered by the wage-hour law. The present maximum work week is 42 hours without overtime pay. Officials were unable to estimate how many persons would be affected by the revised rules.

Most interstate commerce enterprises will be affected, officials said.

BODY OF TOM MIX LIES IN STATE FOR LAST APPEARANCE

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—Tom Mix—cowboy, peace officer, soldier, actor, showman—was making his last personal appearance today.

The body of Mix, killed Saturday in an automobile accident at Florence, Ariz., lay in state in the chapel of Pierce brothers' mortuary. He was dressed in his ranger's coat and white breeches. His prized, diamond-studded belt was buckled around his waist. Only his ten-gallon hat was missing.

His death stunned Hollywood. William S. Hart, one of his closest friends, said, "It's just too awful. My recollections of Tom are still very vivid. He was wonderful."

The 60-year old Mix had been a Texas ranger, a soldier in the Spanish-American war and in the Boxer rebellion, a sheriff at various times of three counties, a U. S. marshal, and a guide to the late President Theodore Roosevelt, but it was as a cowboy actor that he won his fame.

He began to make pictures in 1918 with his famous horse, Tony, at a bank clerk's salary. Within a few years, he was drawing a weekly paycheck of $5,000 and during the next decade it is estimated that he made more in the movies than any other actor or actress.

In late years, he had traveled with a circus in which he owned a major interest. He was traveling as an advance agent for it when his automobile swerved on a dirt road, overturned and killed him instantly.

AT SCOUT MEET

Three From Mansfield Are on Conference Program.

Three Mansfield Girl Scout leaders left today for Dayton to attend the three-day Regional conference of Girl Scouts. All will take part in the program.

The three are Miss Eleanor Bond, executive secretary of the Mansfield Council, and Mrs. John W. Graham and Mrs. Tom Ford, members of the council. A number of troop leaders will also go to Dayton for one or more sessions.

Miss Bond will lead a discussion group on program and another on organization; Mrs. Graham will talk on how to obtain financial support for a Girl Scout program, and Mrs. Ford will talk on a public relations program.

The conference, which embraces leaders from Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia, will start this evening and end Wednesday.

Among the speakers will be Mrs. Herbert Hoover, honorary national vice president.

Mrs. Lawrence Hoffman, commissioner of the Shelby Council, and Mrs. Robert Green, also of Shelby; and Mrs. Shelby Edwards of Ashland, will attend several of the sessions.

RITES TUESDAY

SEE NEXT STEP IN HEMISPHERE DEFENSE PLANS

Move Reported Already 'On the Fire' But Delay of Months Expected.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Transfer of some of the army's flying fortress bombers to Great Britain and a strengthening of ties with Canada were reported by authoritative sources today to be "the logical next steps" in the hemispheric defense program reaffirmed by President Roosevelt Saturday night.

One source said that transfer of bombers was "on the fire," needing only President Roose-Roosevelt's approval. He said high administration officials were prepared to recommend the transfer, though it may be a month or so before it goes through.

Mr. Roosevelt returned to the defense theme in a radio address last night opening the annual mobilization for human needs.

Inferentially, he warned the dictators of the strength of America's spiritual fortifications and asserted that a free people did not need to be cruel in order to be tough.

In his address at Dayton, O., Saturday night in which he pledged a total defense of all the Americas, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that no combination of dictators could prevent the United States from continuing its aid to Britain.

A stronger defense arrangement with Canada was seen by administration officials who feel that a remarkable degree of solidarity already has been achieved among the 21 American republics and that stronger bonds between them and Canada are desirable.

President Roosevelt returned to the White House from his tour of defense projects in Pennsylvania and Ohio yesterday to plunge into problems arising from Japan's policies in the Far East. He is in almost constant touch with state department officials who are arranging evacuation of an estimated 7,000 Americans from the Orient. Plans are being rushed for the dispatch of the liners Monhattan and Washington to the danger zones, but details still are indefinite.

PAPERS READY

66 New Citizens Now Can Get Proof They're Americans.

New citizens who qualified for naturalization papers in examinations Oct. 2 may obtain their papers now at the clerk of courts office in the courthouse, Norman Henry, county naturalization clerk, said today.

The citizenship papers usually are issued at a reception for new citizens following the naturalization test, but the class was so large this time that no reception was arranged.

Sixty-six foreign-born residents of the city and county who passed the naturalization test two weeks ago are eligible to receive papers. Most of the new citizens registered with the board of elections before the Oct. 7 deadline so they can vote Nov. 5.

JAMES A. BOSLEY TAKEN BY DEATH

Former Mansfielder Stricken In Wadsworth Sunday.

James A. Bosley, former Mansfield resident, died at his home in Wadsworth early Sunday morning, and services will be held at the Hillsboro funeral home in that city at 1 p. m. Wednesday. Burial will be made at Mt. Hope cemetery, Shiloh.

He is survived by his wife, Lettie, a daughter, Mrs. Joseph Gorman, of Wadsworth, and four daughters by a previous marriage, all of whom reside in Columbus. He also leaves three brothers, Harry and Lewis of East Mansfield, and William of Seymour, Mo., and a sister, Mrs. Kate Curtain of Delaware.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Speaking for Myself.

I am old enough to remember the days in cafe society when night club brawls, bouts, conflicts, frays and battles were precipitated by and participated in by the Male Element exclusively. They were strictly Stag Affairs.

True, a gal, such as Grace Moore might lend her efforts in a sort of cheering section (as happened in El Morocco when she refereed a bout by quacking like a duck), but, generally speaking, when knuckles were tossed in the Stork Club or other gilded bistro the knuckles belonged to such hairy-chested contestants as Ernest Hemingway, James McKinley Bryant, or George White.

* * *

This season things are different. When fists are thrown in the midnight spots these evenings, it is a good two-to-one bet that their owner is a lady—and this goes not only for fists but for sugar bowls, champagne bottles, ash trays and harsh words.

In the past fortnight some of the town's outstanding beauties have engaged in amateur contests in the niteries, for reasons not often made public.

I do not know what this flurry of feminine fisticuffs means or what it will lead to I just wanted to report it.

I thought maybe it might be a new Trend.

* * *

I see that everybody in town seems to be wearing either a Willkie or a Roosevelt button, except Broadway Rose, who is neutral and loyal. She is still wearing a Ted Lewis button.

I have no interest in seeing "It Happens on Ice" for the reason that Sonja Henie is not skating in it. This is no reflection on the other entertainers who are in the cast, it is just that to me Sonja Henie is far and away the most brilliant skater in the world, and the best to watch. I saw her in her last ice show. From now on, I will just let ice shows slide until she appears in another. . . .

I have never seen an impersonator who doesn't do Lionel Barrymore, Edward G. Robinson, or Harry Richman. And even the imitators of Maurice Chevalier seem to have lasted years longer than the Great Lip. . . .

I am entranced at reports of Rudy Vallee's letter paper at his Maine lodge. Each room, it seems, is named after a friend or a song, and the writing paper in each case matches the room, being embossed "Vagabond Lover," "Saxaphobia," "Alice Faye," "Deep Night" and "Stein Song."

I can think of a young woman who might get an idea from that. She could name a room in her house "Jimmy Stewart" and write all her letters on paper marked to match.

* * *

I guess New Yorkers never change. Kay Swift, the song-writer who penned "Can't We Be Friends," married a cowboy a year or so ago and went out West to live. Her friends would be surprised to learn that Gene Leone, the restaurant proprietor, received a card from Kay last week. She is living happily on a ranch near Missoula, Mont.—and she says the only thing she misses is the annual rodeo at Madison Square Garden!

I'm always amused to hear people in restaurants ordering a tomato dish. Often one says "tomahto" and the other says "tomayto." I call them "tomahtoes," but when I am with anyone who calls them "tomaytoes" I become self-conscious and afraid that I will sound as if I am correcting another's pronunciation so I say "tomaytoes" too.

* * *

I wish a milliner would invent a hat that a woman could put on like a man does, in one operation and without looking into a mirror. But I guess first someone would have to invent a woman who would be willing to put on a hat without looking into a mirror. . . .

Nothing's friendlier than an auto radio on long drives at night. . . . After watching Edna Sedgwick dance in Ed Wynn's "Boys and Girls Together" I don't blame the person who called her toe "feeture" of the show. . . .

I'd love to have a penguin for a pet; they're such unconsciously merry-looking little creatures. You couldn't be gloomy with one around—anymore than you could frown at a Giant baby Panda.

I would like a postman to tell me if he really does feel silly when he's off duty and feels like going for a walk. . . .

I have never seen such a combination as the one around town which is making Times Square offices tremble to the rafters every time it approaches. This is the combination of Romeo Vincent the 270-pound singing comic star of the Hurricane, and his agent, Paul Small, who weighs 290!

* * *

Assistant Postmaster "Bill" Houston stopping to direct a New York car to the Johnny Appleseed monument in Middle park . . . Floyd Dent back in Mansfield after a week's boy scout conference in West Virginia . . . Florence Carpenter returning after a week-end in Cleveland . . . Bob Hoffman, Marysville, who was employed at The News-Journal a year ago, greeting a Mansfield friend while in town for a few minutes.

* * *

Fred Rosin (whose flower beds at Memorial park are still something to see) crossing the street on the green light and warning another pedestrian of the dangers of the practice . . . Mrs. Pauline Swartzwalder telling of her and her husband's trip to see the colored hills southeast of here and of turning back at Loudonville yesterday because of the jam of traffic there.

* * *

Two six-year-olders getting into a fuss in Sunday school class over their Willkie and Roosevelt campaign buttons . . . Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman and Park Wilson renewing their verbal feud over the merits of Bellville as a place to live, Freeman arguing vigorously for it as his home town . . . Attorney Jacob Wagenhals refusing to discuss politics, adding that he didn't "know anything about who's going to win."

* * *

Pedestrians picking their way around a pile of coal on the sidewalk in front of the Farmers Savings bank . . . Marion D. Ward, Jr., (city solicitor) and Dean Eckert, back from Chicago and predicting Northwestern as the Big Ten football champions after observing their play against Ohio State Saturday.

* * *

Paul and Ann Stephens leaving the movie. . . . Inga Fatkin and daughter, Anita, hurrying to Sunday school. . . . Bob Gibson sauntering up Main street at the noon hour. . . . Herb Slough listening to a political speech in a local eatery. . . . Grattan Johnston coming from a shopping spree, with mops and pails in his hands

Supply Club In Grid Tie

Mansfield Semi-pro Football Machine Holds Carrollton In 6-6 Deadlock.

THEY haven't been able this season to uncover a smooth-working attack that would net enough touchdowns to score a victory, but the Automotive Supplies today are proud of the battle they put up in Carrollton Sunday.

The Mansfield semi-pro outfit invaded Carrollton with three defeats on the ledger and then gained a 6 to 6 deadlock with the Carrollton Indians in a bitterly-fought contest before some 1,200 spectators.

Both combines found their ground attack unable to penetrate the stout defensive forward walls and it took two thrilling touchdown gallops to place the points on the scoreboard.

* * *

After seeing their attack bog down in the initial frame, Carrollton punched over its lone marker when Duval raced 62 yards into pay dirt.

* * *

Mansfield waited until the third to score. Vern Heiser accomplished the feat when he intercepted a Carrollton aerial on his own 27 and galloped 72 yards for the touchdown. Al Schwaner's try for the extra point was wide.

Coach Earl McMullen's aggregation nearly lost the tie shortly afterwards when the Indians pounded to the Mansfield 2-foot line in the fourth frame.

The Supplies' line stiffened and the Mansfielders took the ball on downs. Then Al Schwaner stepped into the spotlight by booting a spectacular 67-yard punt that carried the club out of danger.

* * *

During most of the game the clubs fought it out in midfield with neither club holding the advantage. Carrollton chalked up six first downs while the Mansfield team was registering five.

* * *

Mansfield fans may have their first chance of the season to see the Supplies in action at home next Sunday, Fred Rizzo, business manager announced today. If the club can secure a tough opponent the contest is expected to be played at the Fairground.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(UP)—Not since Grant refused Lee's sword at Appomatox has the south been treated with more courtesy by the north than it was here in Notre Dame stadium last Saturday.

* * *

Notre Dame, with one of the greatest teams ever to represent the school, could have torn Georgia Tech apart and run up a telephone number score. But the Irish refused to do it. They played the game close to the vest—almost too close, as it turned out—and were satisfied with a 26-20 victory.

* * *

Coach Elmer Layden used his pulverizing first team for fewer than 15 minutes. During that brief period Saggau, Piepul, Hargrave and Juzwik scored 20 points.

Coach Elmer Layden, one of the finest gentlemen in the coaching business, simply would not tolerate the humiliation of a team that was out-manned and which was badly crippled. There are few finer athletic friendships than the one that has existed between Tech and Notre Dame since their first game in 1922.

Toward the close of the game, Layden must have had some fretful moments. Because Tech, working against the second, third and fourth teams, pulled up to within six points of the Irish.

Notre Dame is a real powerhouse this year and two, three or even four touchdowns better than the team fielded by Tech on Saturday. The Irish won't be beaten this year. You can go to sleep on that. It is three and four deep on the line, and with plenty of quality.

And in the backfield—well, Layden has great breakaway runners, great plungers, and great passers. Moreover, they are smart operators too.

They figured out the Tech offense and stopped it cold, and no one with a poor I. Q. rating is going to solve the intricate and beautifully marked attack that Alexander and Bobby Dodd have worked out.

Captain Piepul is one of the great fullbacks. Juzwik is a magnificent open field runner but he isn't any more spectacular than Saggau. Saggau can pass with the best, too, as can Evans, Bagarus and a host of others.

* * *

Hargrave is a thinking quarterback. It was his strategy that threw the game of Saturday wide open. Seeing that Tech was massing to stop Piepul he started firing the ball all over the place.

* * *

He is more than an analyst. He can catch passes with the best, and is no mean ground gainer with that ball under his arm. No, the Irish won't be stopped this year.

Big Ten To Get Action

Purdue Only Eleven Not to See Action This Week.

CHICAGO—(AP)—The football situation in the western conference this week-end will resemble a good, old fashioned family brawl more than anything else.

* * *

Minnesota, idle last week, will be primed for the pivotal test with Ohio State. The Bucks were on their way to a 3-0 decision over Northwestern last Saturday when a pass deep in Ohio's territory was intercepted, paving the way for the Wild Cats' game-winning touchdown. Bill De Correvont scored the six-pointer.

* * *

Southern California outlasted Bob Zuppke's Illini, 13 to 7, while Tommy Harmon and Michigan were romping over Harvard, 26-0. Harmon accounted for 20 points, giving him 69 for three games.

Whether he can run wild against the Illini which halted him a year ago is the lure that is expected to draw an immense crowd to Ann Arbor for their next meeting Saturday.

* * *

Iowa whipped Wisconsin, 30 to 12, after a blocked kick broke a 12-12 stalemate. The Hawks invade Bloomington for a shot at Indiana this week while Wisconsin is entertaining Northwestern.

* * *

Nebraska defeated Indiana, 13 to 7, while the other Hoosier entry in the conference, Purdue was taking a beating from Michigan State, 20-7. The Boilermakers are not scheduled this week.

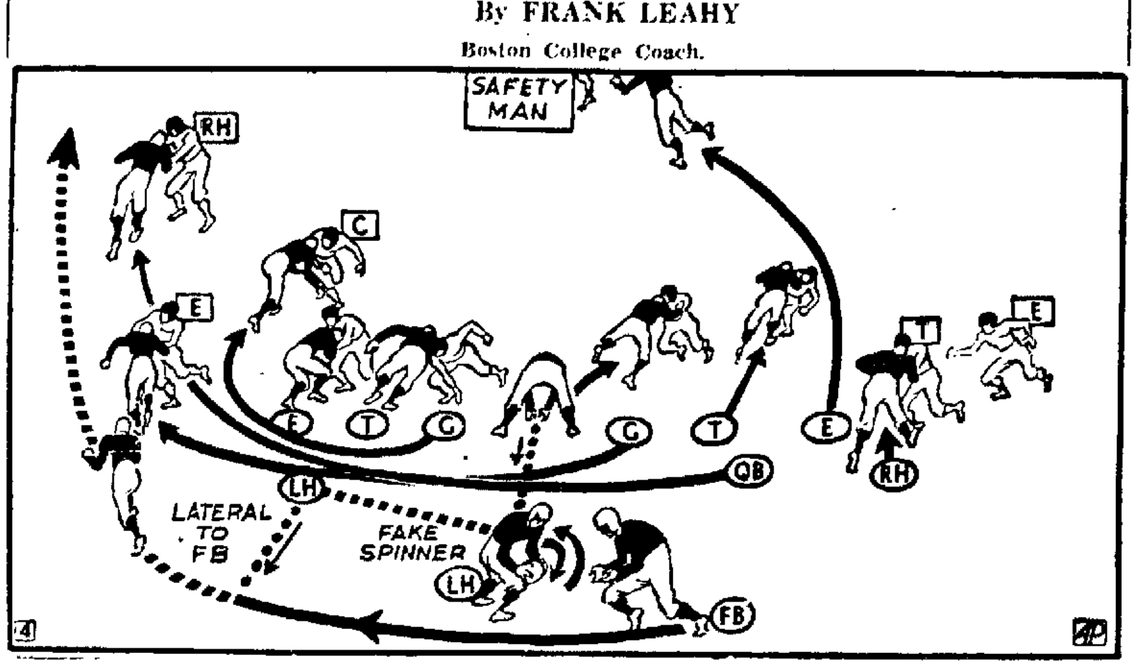
"I LIKE THIS PLAY"

By FRANK LEAHY

Boston College Coach.



(Fourth In A Series)

This fake spinner that develops into a lateral pass is recommended by the Eagles. The left halfback fakes to the fullback, who purposely makes a poor fake to tip the defensive right end that he hasn't the ball. The left half then fakes a runback, moves out to the left and then laterals to the fullback who has run wide. The quarterback goes through to take out the defensive right halfback, the right guard pulls out and blocks the right end, the left guard pulls out and around to dump the backer-upper and the left end and tackle and right guard and tackle block their opponents toward the right. The right end goes down to get the safety man.

Sutherland Pilots Dodgers to 3rd Win

CHICAGO—(AP)—Dr. John Bain Sutherland is the "rookie" coach of the National Football league, but you'd never know it by the current doings of his Brooklyn Dodgers.

* * *

The Dodgers racked up their third straight league triumph yesterday 21 to 0 over the Pittsburgh Steelers before 19,468 fans. Jock's boys scored twice on aerials and once on the ground.

The club's only setback this season was a 24-17 loss to the Redskins in Sutherland's debut as a pro coach. Washington, however, hasn't shown any inclination to fade, turning back the Chicago Cardinals, 28 to 21, yesterday before 33,691 spectators.

The hapless Philadelphia Eagles dropped their fifth straight game, bowing to the New York Giants, 17 to 7, all the scoring coming in the second half.

Green Bay and the Chicago Bears maintained their deadlock for western division leadership. The Packers unloosed their air attack for a 31 to 14 victory over Cleveland.

* * *

The Bears turned the first four plays of their game with Detroit into a touchdown, Bill Osmanski dashing 34 yards for the score. Jack Manders kicked the placement and that ended the point-making for a 7-0 triumph.

The day's five games attracted 133,992 customers, running the aggregate attendance for 23 games this season to 521,990.

92-Yard Punt Sets New Grid Record

PITTSBURGH—(UP)—Whenever the talk is of football, the subject hereabouts is Preston Johnson's thrilling 92-yard punt in the fading moments of Southern Methodist's 7-7 battle with Pitt.

* * *

Propelled by the Mustang fullback, the ball sailed from behind the Southern Methodist goal line to just two yards from the Pitt goal. Scrimmaged from the six-yard stripe, it carried through the air to the Panther 35 and bounded the rest of the way.

* * *

The kick exceeded by three yards the longest recorded punt in intercollegiate grid history by Al Braga for San Francisco against Montana in 1937.

Automobile ownership in the U. S. has expanded about 5 per cent during the first seven months of 1940.

Pigskin Lead Still Mystery

Fans Should Know More Where Their Favorite Teams Belong Saturday.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Football fans should know a lot more about where their favorite teams belong in the national picture by this time next week.

October's first two Saturdays have helped sift out the weak ones and next Saturday's schedule should help the job along.

The best prospects now for title awards appear to be these:

East: Cornell, Pennsylvania, Boston college, Georgetown and Villanova.

* * *

Midwest: Michigan, Northwestern, Minnesota in the Big Ten; Nebraska and Missouri in the Big Six, and Notre Dame.

* * *

South: Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama in the Southwestern conference; Clemson and Duke in the Southern and "independent" Virginia.

Southwest: Texis Aggies, Texas and Rice.

Rocky Mountain: Utah and Colorado.

Pacific coast: Stanford, Washington and Washington State.

Cornell's 45-0 victory over Army marked it as a team without a real weakness. Next Saturday Cornell meets Syracuse, which bounced back from a defeat by Northwestern to wallop New York university 47-13. Penn also gave an amazing performance in handing Yale its worst defeat, 50-7. Princeton was downed 12-6 by Navy.

Fordham showed promise in walloping Tulane 20-7 and Boston college followed form in whipping Temple 33-20. Pitt played a 7-7 tie with Southern Methodist.

The intersectional list sends Boston college against thrice-beaten Idaho; Colgate, 20-3 victor over Brown, against Duke; Columbia, 20-6 winner over Dartmouth, against Georgia, Navy against Drake; and Temple against Michigan State.

Playing on foreign fields, Villanova meets Baylor; Duquesne's unbeaten team meets Mississippi, Southeastern conference leader; Carnegie Tech, beaten 21-0 by Holy Cross, visits Notre Dame and George Washington, 20-14 winner over Washington and Lee, plays Kentucky.

Harvard was a 26-0 breeze for Michigan and Tommy Harmon while Northwestern conquered Ohio State 6-3. Iowa beat Wisconsin 30-12. All three have tough conference assignments this week. Michigan plays Illinois, which lost a 13-7 decision to Southern California.

Northwestern meets Wisconsin and Iowa takes on Indiana, a 13-7 loser to Nebraska. Ohio State has Minnesota, which was idle Saturday. Purdue trounced 20-7 by Michigan State, is off this week.

There's not an undefeated team in the Big Six, but Nebraska looks good on the strength of an even break against Big Ten opposition and Missouri was impressive in a 24-13 win over Kansas State.

Notre Dame, with a 26-20 triumph over Georgia Tech, may find Carnegie Tech a troublesome customer this week.

Mississippi's twin scoring stars, Junie Hovious and Merle Hapes led the Rebels to a 28-14 victory over Georgia that gave them the undisputed Southeastern conference lead.

The Southern conference race has been reduced to a Clemson-Duke duel. This week Duke visits Colgate while Clemson, after eliminating Wake Forest by a decisive 39-0, takes a week off.

* * *

Although the Southwest conference race is wide open, Texas and Texas Aggies have turned in the best feats so far. The Aggies downed U. C. L. A. 7-0 last week.

Colorado walloped Utah State 26-0 to get a flying start in the Big Seven conference race. Stanford, which conquered Santa Clara 7-6 for its third straight victory, and Washington State, 9-6 winner over California, meet in a "natural" at Pullman, Wash., Saturday.

SPORTS CHATTER

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Pigskin Paragraphs: !

You've heard about the linemen getting the bruises, while the backfielders get the glory? Well, listen to what Jim (Abajaba) Alogdelis, Kent State's towering tackle, has to say about it:—

* * *

"Everybody takes cuts at the ball carrier. He gets knocked down, stepped on, piled on and roughed. When he tries a pass he has to stand there unprotected and let opposing linemen bust him. To heck with a position where a man can't protect himself a little. I'll take the line, where the going's easy."

* * *

Toledo Waite, the team that beat Portsmouth 9 to 7 in the Buckeye Bowl high school game at Columbus last year, is still going strong despite the loss of practically all its 1939 talent.

Outstanding man on the squad is Johnny Baker, who weighs 237 pounds and plays the blocking halfback post with speed, agility, and "sock."

The last time Waite lost a game was in November, 1938, the victory string now stretching to 16.

The Toledians do quite a bit of traveling for a scholastic squad, picking opponents from coast to coast. Last year they beat Peabody, Mass., New England champions, 33 to 0, and Knoxville, Tenn., 34 to 9. When Waite beats a club by 40 points or more, that team is eased off the schedule.

Contract for a game with an Oklahoma City high school has been signed for 1941, and Waite is "dickering" for a Nov. 29, 1941, date at Portland, Ore.

* * *

The Toledoins will travel by chartered plane to each game—the first scholastic grid team in history to take to the air literally as well as figuratively.

It has been bandied around that Ohio State is the toughest college in the country on its football coaches. Well, the present crop seems to be holding up pretty well under the pressure. Line coach Ernie Godfrey has been there 12 years, head coach Francis Schmidt seven years, and freshman coach Fritz Mackey, six years. The other three, end coach Sid Gillman, backfield coach Ed Blickle, and assistant line coach Gomer Jones, have been on hand three seasons.

SHIELD STAFF ON JOB AGAIN

Workers on Old Paper Recall Fun and Labors of Past at Malabar Reunion.

"It was during 'Sunny Jim' Cox's campaign and this reporter was assigned to cover his speech at the old Opera House. The reporter, however, got a copy of Cox's speech in the mail and wrote his story without even going near the Opera House."

"Meanwhile, Cox's car broke down and he never got to Mansfield. The next morning the 'Shield went out on the street with an account of the speech carried under the biggest banner headline we had in the shop."

"I looked for that reporter for three days before he showed up again at the office," Brunner said.

Leonard then recalled how he sent the same reporter to Dayton to cover the 1913 flood, one of the biggest stories of the year.

"We nearly went nuts waiting for the story," Leonard recalled. "We sent wire after wire, asking for news of the flood."

After they had missed several editions with the story and were ready to send a posse to Dayton to look for the reporter, they finally received this classic of brevity: "Nothing to report. All is confusion."

Earl Pollock, city editor on the old Shield, then told about a speech Brunner made after he had been elected mayor of Mansfield.

"Everybody in town was out to honor the new mayor," Pollock said. "There was a big parade, headed by a band and all the city officials, through the streets of Mansfield."

"The parade ended in front of the Shield office, where Brunner was supposed to make a speech to the gathering. Finally Brunner came out to address his audience, which dutifully quieted down in order to catch every word."

"But after Henry got one look at the crowd all he could get out of his throat was a couple of 'thank you's.' After that he beat a hasty retreat back into his office, perspiring heavily."

Then there was the night the power house blew up and Leonard sent three reporters to the scene to get the story.

Because the power was off, Leonard had to get some motorcycles from "Mud" Gardner's garage and hook up the wheels of the cycles to the linotypes so they could continue to set type.

After holding up the presses for more than an hour, the three reporters returned. Leonard sat down at his typewriter and told them to dictate the story.

One of the reporters started to dictate the yarn, but he hadn't gotten very far before the other reporters contradicted him. It finally turned out that each reporter had an entire different slant on the story.

"After going to all that trouble getting the story," Leonard said, "we finally ended up with a four-line bulletin telling that the power house had blown up."

Early in the evening a picnic dinner was served in a woods at Malabar, after which the old-timers sat around the campfire and talked over old times.

It was unanimously decided to hold another reunion at the farm next year. Some of the old employes had not seen each other for 25 years.

Those who attended the reunion yesterday were Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Brunner, Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Leonard, sr., and son, Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pollock, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Almy, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bromfield, Mr. and Mrs. George Biddle, Leo Corbett, and Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Leonard, jr.

MANGANESE

New Mexico Area Found Rich In Important Ore.

SILVER CITY, N. M. — (U.P.) — Manganese—vital to America's defense program—is extensively deposited in the mountainous region near Silver City, the U. S. Bureau of Mines reported after a survey of the section known as Boston Hill.

Since the World war, when Boston Hill produced and shipped 500,000 tons of manganese, the deposits have been worked intermittently.

Now, with industry shifting into high gear, Boston Hill again looms as an important source of the nation's supply of the vital product.

Potential ore available on Boston Hill, a veritable mountain of low-grade manganese, has been estimated at millions of tons.

LEGAL NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals will be received until 8 o'clock P. M. Eastern Standard Time, Tuesday, Oct. 21, 1940 at the office of the Mifflin Township Trustees at the old Koogle School House on the Koogle-Harlan Road, for graveling the Maglott Road No. 93.

Copies of plans, specifications and estimates are on file in the offices of the Township Trustees and the County Engineer. COUNTY HIGH IN SALES TAX GAIN

Richland Ranks 11th in State In Percentage of Climb For First 9 Months.

Richland county ranked 11th among the 88 counties in Ohio in percentage of sales tax gain for the first nine months of 1940, figures released by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright showed today.

The county's increase for the period amounted to 17.2 per cent over a corresponding period last year.

Richland county's gain was well above the state average of 12.3 per cent. Highest percentage of gain was 25.5 per cent in Clermont county. Eleven counties showed a loss.

Sales tax receipts in Richland county to Oct. 1 were $424,099, a gain of $62,360 over collections for the first nine months of 1939, the report showed.

For the final week of September receipts in the county jumped to $13,027 from $10,417 the preceding week.

Collections in Ohio to Oct. 1 this year totaled $34,789,768, a gain of approximately $4,000,000 over the first three quarters of 1939.

RESOLUTION NO. 40-171

By Mr. Kutschall:

Declaring it necessary to improve Lawnsdale Avenue from McPherson Street to Burns Street by the construction of an 8-inch sanitary sewer therein.

Be it Resolved by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, Three-Fourths of all Members elected thereto concurring:

SEC. 1.—That it is necessary to improve Lawnsdale Avenue from McPherson Street to Burns Street by the construction of an 8-inch sanitary sewer therein.

SEC. 2—That the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles of the proposed improvement heretofore prepared by the City Civil Engineer and now on file in the office of the Department of Public Service, be and the same are hereby approved.

SEC. 3.—That the whole cost of said improvement, less one-fiftieth of the total cost shall be assessed in proportion to the benefits resulting from the improvement upon the following described lots and lands, to-wit; all lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed improvement which said lots and lands are hereby determined to be specifically benefitted by said improvement; and the cost of said improvement shall include the expense of printing, publishing and serving the necessary legal notices, the printing and publishing of the necessary resolutions and ordinances, the cost of construction and inspection together with interest on bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred assessments, and all other necessary expenditures.

SEC. 4.—That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in three annual installments, with interest on deferred payments at the same rate as to be borne by the bonds to be issued therefor, provided that the owner of any property assessed may, at his option, pay such assessment in cash within thirty days from and after the passage of the assessing ordinance in which case said assessment shall not include any item of interest upon bonds to be issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessments.

SEC. 5.—That bonds of the City of Mansfield shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in amount equal thereto.

SEC. 6.—That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement, not specially assessed, together with the cost of any real estate or interest therein, purchased or appropriated, and the cost and expense of any appropriation proceeding therefor, and the damages awarded any owner of adjoining or abutting lands and interest thereon, and the cost and expense of such award shall be paid by the City of Mansfield, Ohio, in the manner provided by law.

SEC. 7.—This resolution shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed October 1, 1940.

LEGAL NOTICE

Notice is hereby given, that Marie J. Tucker and Donald A. Tucker, Mansfield, Ohio, has been duly appointed and qualified as admx. in the estate of Margaret Tucker deceased, Late of Mansfield, Richland County, Ohio. Date Oct. 11 1940.

C. J. ANDERSON,
Probate Judge of Richland County, O.
(Oct. 14, 21, 28, NJ '40)

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received at the office of the Madison Township Trustees, Richland County, Ohio, until the 28th day of October, 1940, at 8 o'clock P. M. Eastern Standard Time for the furnishing of labor and material for the road surfacing of Seminole Avenue in Broadview Allotment, Madison Township. Materials shall be either crushed slag or crushed run gravel and furnished, hauled and applied as per the plans and specifications on file in the office of the County Engineer.

Right is reserved to reject any or all bids. Contract will be awarded to lowest and best bidder. Bids are to be submitted upon a lump sum basis.

Attention is directed to the special statutory provisions, General Code—a 1—7—3 et seq. governing the prevailing rate of wages to be paid to laborers and mechanics employed on public improvements.

No bid will be considered which is for a greater sum than the estimated cost, nor unless it be accompanied by a bond or certified check in the sum of $25.00 to guarantee that if said bid is accepted, a contract will be entered into and the performance of it properly secured.

By order of the trustees.
FRED J. STAHLHEBER,
Township Clerk.

RESOLUTION NO. 40-172

By Mr. Shultz:

Declaring it necessary to improve Marlow Road from Maple Street to City Park by grading the street to the established grade and graveling the roadway with some suitable material, constructing the necessary storm drainage, etc.

Be it Resolved by the Council of the City of Mansfield, State of Ohio, Three-Fourths of all Members elected thereto concurring.

SEC. 1.—That it is necessary to improve Marlow Road from Maple Street to City Park by grading the street to the established grade and graveling the roadway with some suitable material, constructing the necessary storm drainage, etc.

SEC. 2.—That the grade of said street as improved shall be the established grade.

SEC. 3.—That the plans, specifications, and profiles of the proposed improvement heretofore prepared by the City Civil Engineer and now on file in the office of the Department of Public Service, be and the same are hereby approved.

SEC. 4.—That the whole cost of said improvement, less the cost of intersections and one-fiftieth of the total cost shall be assessed by the foot front upon the following described lots and lands, to-wit: all lots and lands bounding and abutting upon the proposed improvement which said lots and lands are hereby determined to be specifically benefitted by said improvement, and the cost of said improvement shall include the expense of printing, publishing and serving the necessary legal notices, the printing and publishing of the necessary resolutions and ordinances, the cost of construction and inspection together with interest on bonds issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred assessments, and all other necessary expenditures.

SEC. 5.—That the assessments so to be levied shall be paid in three annual installments, with interest on deferred payments at the same rate as borne by the bonds to be issued therefor, provided that the owner of any property assessed may, at his option, pay such assessment in cash within thirty days from and after the passage of the assessing ordinance in which case said cash assessment shall not include any item of interest upon bonds to be issued in anticipation of the collection of deferred installments of assessments.

SEC. 6.—That bonds of the City of Mansfield shall be issued in anticipation of the collection of assessments by installments and in an amount equal thereto.

SEC. 7.—That the remainder of the entire cost of said improvement not specially assessed, including the cost of intersections together with the cost of any real estate or interest therein, purchased or appropriated, and the cost and expense of any appropriation proceeding therefor, and the damages awarded any owner of adjoining or abutting lands and interest thereon and the cost and expense of such award shall be paid by the City of Mansfield, Ohio, in the manner provided by law.

SEC. 8.—This resolution shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law.

Passed October 1, 1940.
(Signed) HOWARD G. MILLER, President of Council.
(Approved) W. J. LOCKE, Mayor.
(Attest) WM. J. BEER, JR., Clerk of Council.

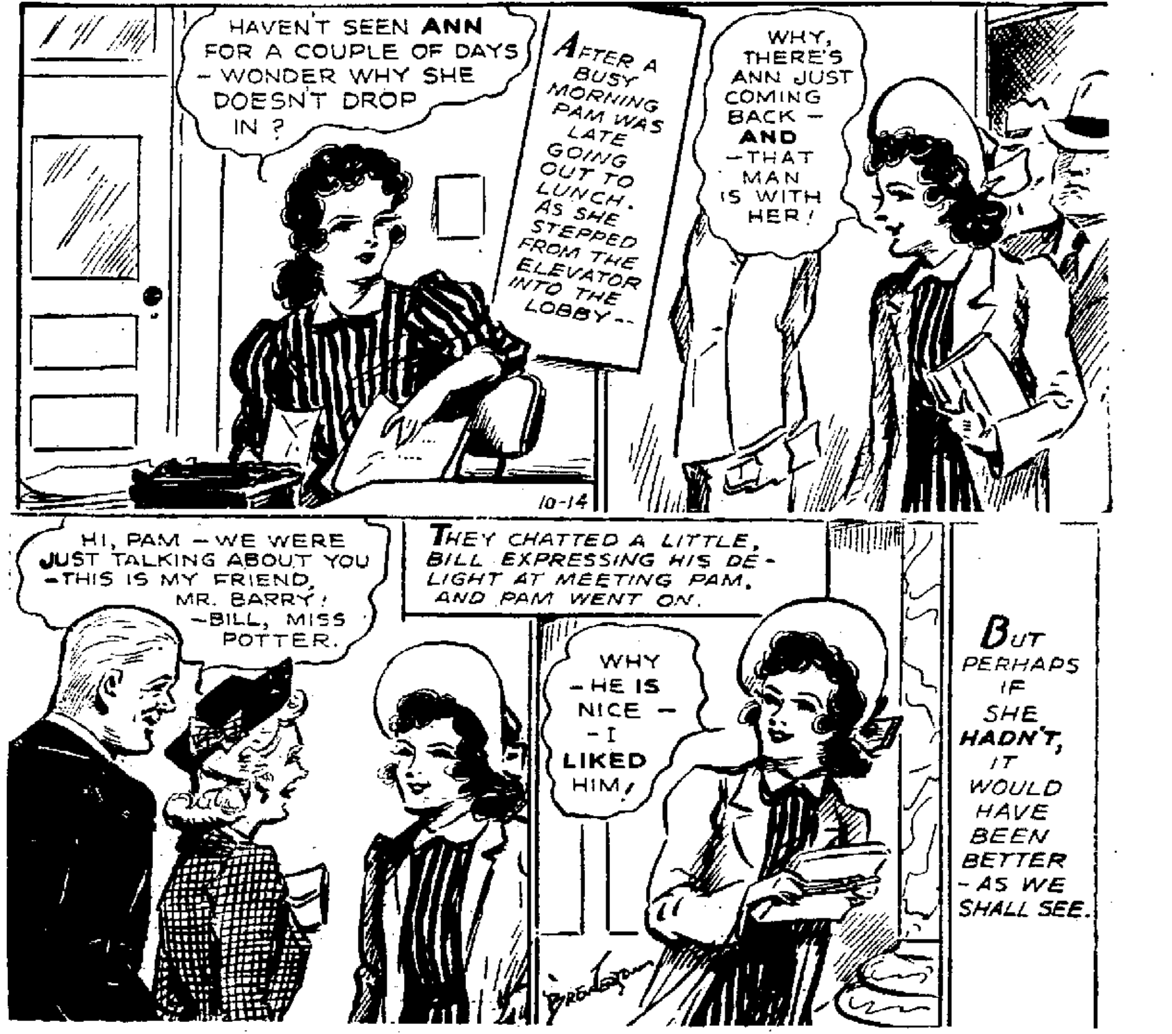
PAM— Boy Meets Girl!

By A. W. Brewerton



HAVEN'T SEEN ANN FOR A COUPLE OF DAYS — WONDER WHY SHE DOESN'T DROP IN ?
AFTER A BUSY MORNING PAM WAS LATE GOING OUT TO LUNCH. AS SHE STEPPED FROM THE ELEVATOR INTO THE LOBBY-- WHY, THERE'S ANN JUST COMING BACK — AND — THAT MAN IS WITH HER!
10-14
HI, PAM — WE WERE JUST TALKING ABOUT YOU — THIS IS MY FRIEND, MR. BARRY! — BILL, MISS POTTER.
THEY CHATTED A LITTLE, BILL EXPRESSING HIS DELIGHT AT MEETING PAM, AND PAM WENT ON.
WHY — HE IS NICE — I LIKED HIM!
BUT PERHAPS IF SHE HADN'T, IT WOULD HAVE BEEN BETTER — AS WE SHALL SEE.

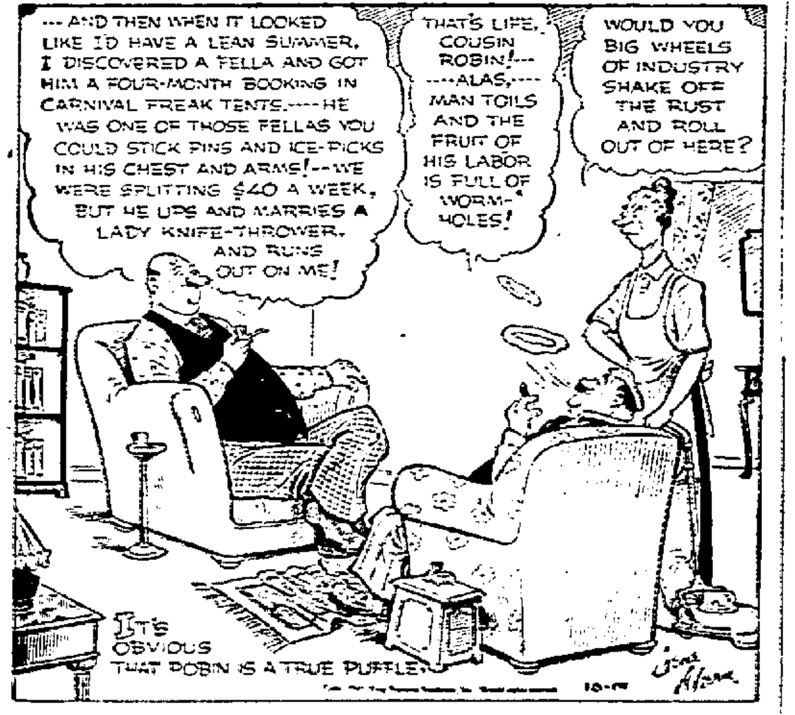
JUDGE PUFFLE

By Gene Ahern



--- AND THEN WHEN IT LOOKED LIKE I'D HAVE A LEAN SUMMER, I DISCOVERED A FELLA AND GOT HIM A FOUR-MONTH BOOKING IN CARNIVAL FREAK TENTS.---HE WAS ONE OF THOSE FELLAS YOU COULD STICK PINS AND ICE-PICKS IN HIS CHEST AND ARMS!--WE WERE SPLITTING $40 A WEEK, BUT HE UPS AND MARRIES A LADY KNIFE-THROWER, AND RUNS OUT ON ME!
THAT'S LIFE, COUSIN ROBIN!---ALAS,---MAN TOILS AND THE FRUIT OF HIS LABOR IS FULL OF WORM-HOLES!
WOULD YOU BIG WHEELS OF INDUSTRY SHAKE OFF THE RUST AND ROLL OUT OF HERE?
IT'S OBVIOUS THAT ROBIN IS A TRUE PUFFLE!

OBIE, THE MONEY IS JUST ROLLING IN AND I'M IN A VERY GRATEFUL MOOD - I'D LIKE TO DO SOMETHING FOR THIS TOWN - IT'S BEEN GOOD TO ME
10-14
YOU'VE DONE A LOT FOR THE TOWN - MORE THAN IT'S DONE FOR YOU - THE TOWN SHOULD BE GRATEFUL FOR SUCH A GOOD CITIZEN
I'D LIKE TO BUILD A SORT OF MONUMENT TO MYSELF - A DRINKING FOUNTAIN FOR THIRSTY HORSES USED TO BE THE VOGUE BUT THERE ARE SO FEW HORSES NOW
I'LL TELL YOU HOW YOU CAN BE A MOST POPULAR AND IDOLIZED CITIZEN - BUILD A FOUNTAIN FOR THIRSTY AUTOMOBILES - KEEP IT FILLED WITH GASOLINE

LEADING STOCKS MOVE FORWARD IN MART TODAY

Steels, Aircrafts Among Better Share Performers: Bonds Are Trifle Mixed.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — (AP) — Leading stocks moved up fractions to around a point in today's market.

Among better share performers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible common and preferred, United Aircraft, International Harvester, Westinghouse, J. C. Penney, Texas Corp., N. Y. Central, General Motors, Chrysler and U. S. Rubber.

Securities at London were irregular. Bonds and commodities were a trifle mixed.

Traders came back from their lengthy week-end holiday in a slightly more optimistic mood, brokers said.

Financial observers found satisfaction in the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said there was every indication production would be continued at a high rate with new records likely.

"Orders are being booked consistently in excess of production and backlogs are increasing," the publication disclosed.

The National Lumber Manufacturers association placed lumber output for the week ended Oct. 5 at 6 per cent less than in the previous week.

Standard Oil, Eastman Advise Employes To Leave East.

MANILA, P. I. —(INS)— Wives and children of employes of Standard Oil, Eastman Kodak, and other American companies in the Philippines were advised by company officials today to book passage for the United States as soon as possible.

Families of navy officers of the Asiatic fleet were also being advised to leave, it was learned.

The orders to leave the Philippines climax weeks of tension in the Orient in which the state department urged Americans to return to the United States.

LEARNED FAST

Boy Hits Grandfather With First Rifle Shot.

NEW ORLEANS —(AP)— Joseph Frey, 53, taught his 5-year-old grandson, Jack Breitenbach, how to shoot a rifle in one easy lesson.

He shot the firearm several times and then handed it to the boy. Jack pulled the trigger and the bullet entered the calf of his grandfather's right leg.

NYA ALLOTMENT

WASHINGTON—(AP)— Ohio has been allotted $5,008,184 by the national youth administration to speed employment of out-of-school unemployed young people, with special emphasis on metal and mechanical projects, Aubrey Williams, NYA administrator, said. The allocation was part of a national program to add 100,000 to the 250,000 youths from 17 to 25 doing out-of-school work.

TAKE REFUGEES

MEXICO CITY —(INS)— President Lazaro Cardenas today ordered Mexican government officials to make preparations to receive 100,000 Spanish refugees.

and Finland. The British blockade remains inpenegable.

The conditions in other European countries are:

Sweden—The best of all Europe with a surplus of butter fats, reserves to make up for a short wheat crop, pork rationed and adequate beef. Bread is rationed to assure an adequate supply next year should crops be short. Sweden's normal wheat crop of 1,000,000 metric tons was 250,000 tons short this year. Manufacture of margarine has been prohibited to utilize an excess of butter.

Norway—Will be on fairly strict rations this winter with a particular shortage of fats. Norway entered the war period with a year's supply of food ahead, but much has been requisitioned by Germany and the presence of between 300,000 and 350,000 troops of occupation is a heavy burden.

Belgium—Now on a bread ration of one-half pound daily with expectation that this will be cut to one-quarter pound. All food products are short and are rationed, according to information reaching the Belgium legation. Chickens have been slaughtered on German orders as "non-economic" and cattle have been slaughtered to turn grazing land into grain production in an effort to increase production which normally is from one-fourth to one-third of requirements. A report as of Sept. 12 indicated there would be no more coffee and little butter a month from that date.

Denmark — Reports indicate Denmark will get through the winter comparatively well, but slaughter of livestock, because of lack of fodder, will impoverish the country for future needs, Danes believe.

Butter production in most European countries in 1940 will be lower than in 1939. Denmark, The Netherlands, northern France and Belgium all are faced with feedstuff scarcity and suffer from cattle losses.

Germany has apparently increased butter production since the beginning of war by restricting consumption of whole milk, and it is stated that this will largely make up for former imports of 34,000,000,000 pounds a year, says the department of agriculture.

The greatest problem Europe faces is that of distribution of available supplies, a responsibility which falls on Germany.

LEADS NATION

Mansfield Nursing Service Sets Maternity Record.

National statistics on bedside nursing service over the United States shows that the Mansfield Visiting Nurses handles a larger per cent of maternity and delivery cases than any other similar nursing group in the nation.

This statement is contained in a monthly report from the Visiting Nurses to the Community Fund which supports the nursing service. Last month they handled 125 cases and of this number ten were deliveries and nine were new prenatal cases.

The report also shows that 10.8 per cent of all cases handled during last year were pay cases, as compared with a national average of 10 per cent. Approximately 90 per cent of the nursing service is free, according to the report.

The 125 cases handled last month entailed a total of 445 visits by the organization's four nurses.

ASHLAND HISTORIAN RECALLS BRYAN'S VISIT HERE IN 1900

William A. Duff, Ashland newspaper columnist and historian, recalls in his column that it was exactly 40 years ago yesterday that a presidential candidate spoke in Mansfield and drew a crowd that more than doubled the population of the town itself.

William Jennings Bryan the "Great Commoner" came to Mansfield on Oct. 13, 1900, rode in a great parade and spoke from the steps of the county courthouse to a crowd estimated all the way from 10,000 to 75,000.

Some idea of the devotion of his followers may be gained from the fact that thousands of them stood from 1 until 4:15 in the park and the streets adjacent to the court house.

Duff recalls that the Erie and Pennsylvania railroads ran special trains, and that 500 came over on a special from Ashland and that the Ashland representation was at least 5,000. The space around the courthouse was packed with people at least two hours and a half before the "silver tongue orator" arrived.

His train was quite late in arriving getting in here at 3:30 p. m. The press of that day declared that the parade was four miles long as it followed him from the depot to the courthouse and that he looked over "acres of people" from the platform erected in front of the county building.

Duff remembers distinctly what the "Great Commoner" wore that day. His suit was a light tan check and "he wore a blue neglige shirt, white lay down collar and a black slouch hat."

It was not Bryan's first campaign for the presidency as he had been a candidate for that office several times before. One of the hottest campaigns in American history was the 1896 presidential battle when the slogan "Sixteen to one" was the keynote of the battle over free silver — sixteen silver dollars to one gold dollar — with William McKinley his opponent.

There have been presidential and vice presidential candidates in Mansfield since then but most of them made rear-platform speeches from the train on which they traveled, as Alfred M. Landon did four years ago and as Wendell L. Willkie will Wednesday.

in the air sending down a rain of high explosive bombs which exploded on contact.

Policemen, air raid wardens and others who braved the open air during the all night raid saw dull red flashes in the sky, followed by gigantic explosions.

It was thought at first that German planes had been shot to pieces, with full bomb loads, in mid-air.

But as the phenomenon was repeated again and again, it was established that the Germans were using a new weapon, a bomb container, somewhat similar to that from which they had showered incendiary bombs, but containing powerful demolition bombs.

One London district was machine gunned by German planes.

Liverpool suffered heavily and there were several casualties when a powerful bomb struck a tenement house.

Hundreds of homes were destroyed in London, in counties surrounding it, and in all parts of the country.

Four great bombs wrecked about 100 homes in a northeastern town and others demolished two communal shelters, killing at least 13 persons and wounding about 20 seriously.

Italians Claim Egyptian Advance

ROME —(INS)— New advances into western Egypt by the Fascist army of Marshall Rodolfo Granzdni were claimed by the Italian high command today.

The desert army reached a point 18 miles east of Sidi Barrani after hurling back a British mechanized force, a communique reported.

Yesterday's high command bulletin reported that one British cruiser had been sunk and two other cruisers and an aircraft carrier severly damaged as the result of Italian naval and air force action off Malta in the Mediterranean.

Italy's losses in the encounter were listed as two 600-ton torpedo boats and 1,400-ton destroyer.

The engagement, according to the communique, began Friday and ended Saturday with the British squadron in full flight.

FALL FATAL

Shelby Man, 72, Found Dead at Bottom of Steps.

Coroner Hugh Winbigler said death was accidental. Dr. Winbigler said that Mr. Krukenberg apparently had started down cellar and fell, striking his head on the cement floor and suffering a possible fracture. He was found at the bottom of the steps.

The accident was believed by officials to have happened about 8 p. m. Saturday. Flynn, noticing the electric lights were turned on early today investigated and notified police.

Surviving are a daughter, Alma of Beaver Falls, Pa., and a son, Dr. Paul W. Krukenberg of Cleveland.

DIVORCE GRANTED

ASHLAND — A decree of divorce was granted in common pleas to Frances E. Weddell from Lewis S. Weddell, after the latter was adjudged guilty of gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty. The plaintiff was restored to her maiden name of Huber.

He asked for support by the Legion and Mansfield civic groups in making the center a success, citing the common purpose of all agencies working for national defense.

Gardner assured NYA of continued co-operation of the Legion and pointed to the fact that the chief youth problem has been the lack of training among young men for skilled work.

Officers and the Legion drum corps participated in the flag raising ceremonies. Walter Beckley, past commander of McVey post, acted as chaplain and master of ceremonies.

The flag pole was donated by the Ohio Fuel Gas company and the flag furnished by McVey post.

First Ohio Guard Detachment Goes to Camp Thursday

NEW SPEED-UP PLAN DEVISED FOR TRAINING

Columbus Troops Slated as First to Leave For Shelby, Miss.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — National guard officers disclosed today that revised speed-up plans call for the first Ohio troops to leave their home stations for Camp Shelby, Miss., by Thursday evening, just two days after the guard enters federal service tomorrow.

Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commanding the 37th division, and members of his staff, probably will go south by train Sunday to supervise preparations for receiving the major part of the 10,500 Ohio troops that will train in Mississippi.

The first units to leave, it was understood, will be composed entirely of detachments from Columbus. These probably will be units of a headquarters company, a service company, part of the 112th quartermaster's regiment, D company and a detachment of military police. They will travel by truck.

Plans call for all Ohio troops to be in camp by Oct. 30, if possible. The men will report to home stations tomorrow and will undergo physical examinations at 17 designated medical centers before departing for Camp Shelby.

Preparations went forward for putting the draft law into effect and the state selective service staff awaited assignment in Washington of a state quota for Ohio. The state staff then will determine the number of men to be supplied by each local draft board. Credit will be given to the state for every man already in the guard, the army, navy and marines. These credits will be broken down to be applied for local districts for their quotas.

Officers disclosed that an earlier provision for the drawing of a key number in the national lottery to determine the order in which men will be called for classification has been eliminated. This means that the master lists sets up by the lottery in Washington later this month will establish the order in which men will be called. The position of a man's serial number on a master list will fix his turn for classification when the local draft boards begin sending out questionnaires.

Draft officials said that several assembly points eventually would be established in the state to which men finally inducted would be sent before going to army camps. Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus and Cincinnati are at least four of these points, they explained.

One of Ohio's most distinguished registrants Wednesday will be Bob Feller, 21-year-old Cleveland baseball pitching ace. He will register in Cleveland, it was disclosed at his home in Van Meter, Ia.

In event his name is drawn, the youthful diamond star who earns around $30,000 annually might be exempted from service under provisions of a ruling giving local draft boards discretion to exempt sports and stage celebrities.

ARMY CAPTAIN

ASHLAND—Dr. G. D. Fridline, local physician, named to command Co. "H" 112th medical regiment while it is in Mississippi with Ohio National Guardsmen, has been appointed a captain, on passing his physical examination.

VICKROY RITES

FREDERICKTOWN — Funeral services were held in the Batemantown church today for Gail Vickory, 16, who died at 8 p. m. Saturday in Mercy hospital, Mt. Vernon, following an illness of three weeks. Burial was in the North Fork cemetery.

Vickory is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vickory, and two sisters, Maxine and Bonnie, at home; his grandmother, Mrs. Lillie Fidler, of this city, and his step-father, Louis Secrist, of Butler. He was a student at the Fredericktown high school at the time of his death.

WILLKIE URGES DEFENSE SPEED

Gives Suggestions To Boost Equipment Production In Planes, Tanks.

In his defense statement Willkie said the people have been awaiting word as to the production of planes, guns, tanks and other equipment.

"So far," he continued, "we have had appropriations, authorizations, contracts, inspection trips, and publicity. The most encouraging actual fact we have had, however, is Mr. (William S.) Knudsen's statement that we will not have the complete equipment for an army of 1,200,000 until December, 1942."

If production was on schedule, he declared, "the publicity organization in Washington would not be bashful in telling us about it." He called for "high speed production without, of course, sacrificing any of the standards regarding wages and hours," and added:

"I know from experience how to get production because that is what I have been hired to do for many years. I also know from experience that workers who are well fed, well paid, and well educated can always beat the slave labor of the dictatorships."

In offering his two suggestions Willkie said he never had criticized without giving constructive proposals.

"Only a little more than a week ago," he went on, "we read in the newspapers that at last agreement had been reached on models of certain types of equipment which were to be put into large-scale production.

"It was shocking to realize that there had been this long delay. We want those planes today. We want planes that embody the lessons of the recent past. But above all, we want to get planes in large numbers at once.

"As president, I would compel a prompt decision and not permit the perfectionists to postpone."

Willkie came into New York Saturday night from New England, and in a speech at Albany declared the Democratic national committee had distributed a "scurrilous x x x indecent" pamphlet containing "an attack upon my father and my wife."

He described it as an effort to raise racial and religious questions, and added, "this is but an example of the high professions and the low performances of the New Deal."

(Edward J. Flynn, Democratic chairman, repudiated the pamphlet in New York yesterday and said that "no one for a moment questions Mr. Willkie's 100 per cent Americanism." The pamphlet asserted in part that Willkie's "whole background is German" and that Mrs. Willkie's parentage was German.)

Blame Placed for 'Smear' Pamphlet

NEW YORK—(INS)—Blame for the "smear" circular attacking Wendell L. Willkie because of his German ancestry today was placed by the Democratic high command on the shoulders of Charles P. Ray, a volunteer worker in the colored division of the Democratic national committee. Ray has been fired.

The circular, made public on Saturday, had caused somewhat of a sensation and it was evident that Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, and his close advisers, were perturbed about the incident.

Flynn repudiated the circular, saying no one in authority had authorized its issuance "officially." Flynn said there was no question about Willkie's 100 per cent Americanism.

Willkie, campaigning up-state, was angered by the circular, regarding it as a personal, rather than a political attack.

NEARLY READY

Parking Meter Contracts To Be Signed Soon, Says Locke.

Contract for leasing 350 manual-type combination nickel and penny parking meters, awarded to the Michaels Art Bronze company of Covington, Ky., last week, will be signed tomorrow, Mayor William J. Locke announced today.

The contract will call for the installation within 30 days in Mansfield's business district for a nine-month trial period with option of purchase by the city.

Purchase price of the machines is $49.50 per unit with a $3.75 monthly rental charge to be applied to the purchase price at the end of the trial period, providing council approves the purchase.

The Michaels Art Bronze company was one of six firms bidding on the meters, the prices ranging from $33 to $68. The proposals opened last week were the second entered in the past two months, the first rejected.

160 Attend Birthday Dinner Sponsored By Church Group

GALION—There were 160 present for the birthday dinner sponsored by the women at the United Brethren church Thursday afternoon. Tables were decorated to represent the 12 months of the year, and the guests were seated at the table which represented the month in which their birthdays are observed.

Mrs. O. E. Knepp was chairman of the program following the dinner and she presented Helen Cole Young, missionary to Africa who is now on furlough. Several musical numbers also featured the program. A welcome was extended by Mrs. J. A. Steele, president of the local missionary society, and remarks were made by many of the guests. There were around 20 present from Marion.

* * *

The first meeting of the newly organized Woman's Society of Christian Service was held Thursday afternoon at the First Methodist church, with 65 members present. Mrs. Fred Biszants presided. A musical feature of the program was a solo sung by Mrs. J. V. Dye. During the social hour, Mary Mather had charge of activities and Mrs. A. W. Manning was chairman of the committee that served refreshments.

* * *

Mrs. Harold Dukeman, the former Edra Arndt, was guest of honor again, at a party given Thursday evening by three hostesses, Mrs. Robert Heiby and Mrs. Franklin Resh of Galion and Mrs. Parks Kentner of Mt. Gilead. This was held at the home of Mrs. Kentner. Pinochle was played by the 12 guests who presented Mrs. Dukeman with a shower of kitchen gifts. When the luncheon was served at a large table, the guests were presented with individual salt and peppers wrapped in celophane. Fiesta ware used on the table, added to the setting. Guests appeared in their kitchen and house dresses.

* * *

Those who took part on the program that featured the monthly meeting of the Ladies' Aid society at the Peace Lutheran church Thursday afternoon were Mrs. Paul Gottfried, Mrs. Herman Derfler, Patty Thompson, June Thayer, Mrs. Richard Thayer and Ruth Gwinner. Devotions were led by Mrs. C. A. Schaefer. The committee that served a supper was composed of Mrs. Edith Thayer, Mrs. Lloyd Hawkins, Mrs. C. E. Trautman and Emma Ricker.

DIPLOMATS OF TURKEY, RUSSIA HOLDING TALKS

Turks Reported Sounding Out Moscow on Assistance For Balkan Alliance.

(By International News Service)

BUDAPEST—Important diplomatic conversations are underway between Turkey and Soviet Russia concerning Germany's military move in Rumania, according to reports received here today from Istanbul.

Turkey is reportedly sounding out Moscow on what support may be expected from Soviet Russia if the Turks, Greeks and Yugoslavs form a defensive alliance to resist any German drive in the Balkans.

The conversations are being conducted both at Istanbul and Moscow, where the Turkish ambassador, Khaidar Aktai, has just returned to his post.

Meanwhile, a Turkish military mission was reported to have arrived in Athens to discuss Greco-Turkish military co-operation in event of a German or Italian drive in the Balkans.

Turkey and Greece are believed to have concluded a secret military pact providing for joint aid in the event Thrace is threatened by invasion.

It was considered significant here that the recent warning of the Turkish press that 2,000,000 Turkish bayonets awaited any Germany threat to Turkey followed immediately after a conference between the Turkish premier and the Soviet ambassador in Istanbul.

Moscow's diplomatic discussions with Turkey coupled with the reported massing of Soviet troops along the Rumanian border convinced neutral diplomatic observers here that the Kremlin was none too pleased by the danger of a German move in the Balkans.

Heavy Soviet troop concentrations were reported in Bessarabia, close to the Rumanian border, and a new Russian military airport was under construction at Cernauti.

RAIN, COLD ON WAY, FORECAST

Balmy Weather About To End, Says Weatherman.

The balmy weather of the past three days which set Mansfielders to thinking summer may not be quite over will give way to rain and chilly temperatures tonight or Tuesday, the weatherman forecast today.

He predicted showers tonight and showers and much cooler Tuesday. The temperature climbed to a summer-like 75 at noon today in Mansfield.

Yesterday's high was 73 here. An October "heat wave" sent the mercury up to 88 in Cincinnati to make that city warmer than Miami, Fla. It was 79 in Columbus and 76 in Cleveland.

THREE DRIVERS GET BIG FINES

Plead Guilty to Driving While Intoxicated; Others Fined on Lesser Charges.

Three persons were given fines ranging from $75 to $100 in municipal court this morning when they pleaded guilty to charges of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol.

They were among seven arrested by city police and highway patrolmen in the city and Richland county area over the week-end.

The three given fines for driving while intoxicated were: C. E. Burkholder, 52, 125 Rowland avenue, $400; Edgar Marvin, 32, 34 East Fourth street, $150; and Howey Mulberg, 47, Galion, $75. All had licenses revoked for one year.

Floyd Norris of Butler was also fined $10 and costs in municipal court this morning for unsafe driving, while Otto J. Wolfer, 31, Crown Point, Ind., forfeited a $25 bond after his arrest on unsafe driving charges.

Carl W. Fields, 23, Columbus, arrested by highway patrolmen yesterday, was fined $25 and costs in Justice of the Peace J. H. Wiles court, Lexington, for speeding.

Sheldon H. Franz, 31, Cleveland, was fined $10 and costs for unsafe driving in Justice of the Peace R. R. Teeter's court yesterday, while John Hoss, R. D. 1, Willard, was fined $10 and costs in Mayor R. A. Dove's court, Greenwich, for speeding. Both were arrested by highway patrolmen.

GUARDSMEN TO BE EXAMINED FOR TRAINING

2 Ashland Companies Come To Mansfield Tuesday For Checkup.

ASHLAND—Two national guard companies here are slated to be transported to Mansfield Tuesday so that the personnel may be examined to determine who will be accepted for a year's training at Mississippi in obeyance to the orders of President Roosevelt.

Co. E, 145th Infantry unit, captained by G. G. Freer, expects to be able to leave with an enlisted personnel of 75 men and with four officers.

Co. H, 112th medical regiment, captained by Dr. G. D. Fridline, will have an estimate strength of 64 men and four officers.

This country is all set to go ahead with the registration of all males from the ages of 21 to 35 Wednesday, and has 7,000 registration blanks and 6,000 registration certificates to do it with.

The county draft board has been organized, with C. E. Budd of Loudonville, named as chairman, and G. E. Falkner of Ashland named secretary.

Headquarters of the board will be at the Farmers Bank building, with a decision to be made later as to a permanent office. The members of the board will travel to Columbus on the 16th, to receive instructions on how to do their work.

HOUSEWARMING

CRESTLINE — A group of about 35 members of the Alter Society of St. Joseph's Catholic church gathered at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Walls, southeast of Crestline, Thursday evening, for a house warming party. The affair was arranged as a surprise to Mrs. Walls, who is a member of the society.

At the close of a social evening the group presented Mrs. Walls with a gift and served refreshments.

TRIED "VENDOL" ON FRIEND'S ADVICE

Local Painter Says Daily Constipation Made His Stomach Feel Upset, Full of Gas, with Acid Risings and "Heartburn."

MR. LESTER H. BAKER

Mr. Lester H. Baker of 612 Bowman street, Mansfield, says, "I was constipated most every day which made it seem like all my troubles were in my stomach, and soon after eating I'd notice a grumbling, then belching hot, sour liquids, gas and cramps.

"A friend advised me to try Vendol, so I took two bottles. It relieved my constipation in the nicest, most satisfactory way, and with this relief I noticed all signs of upset stomach pass away and now I am never troubled like that at all."

If you who read this are suffering from troubles due to constipation, things that a good laxative may relieve, why not benefit by the experience of others who took Vendol and got grand relief? While all cases of gas, sour stomach, indigestion, cramps, acid risings, hunger pains, palpitation, "heartburn," heavy feeling, biliousness, or dizzy feelings are not due to constipation, if yours comes from this cause, give Vendol a chance to see what it may do for you, too. You might soon be feeling like a different person.

There is only one Vendol, and it comes in 3 sizes for your convenience. Larger bottles are the most economical. Sold at leading druggists, recommended especially by Central Drug Store, corner Main and Fourth streets.

CHAPTER XI.

But she slept lightly and restlessly, more upset by Miss Sanderson's intrusion than she would have admitted to herself, and she roused into wide-awakeness when she heard the return of Mrs. Fordyce. It was a cheerful, audible return. Good nights were called loudly to the friends who had brought her home; car doors were slammed.

Jocelyn turned up her bedside light and looked at her watch. It was ten minutes past 3.

The next day was marked by a deathlike silence until 11 o'clock, when Mrs. Fordyce awakened and everything stirred into sudden life. Maids ran up and down; trunks were bumped upstairs; telephones rang; flowers arrived. By noon friends were coming in, women as beautifully groomed as their hostess sat in the dressing room and gossiped and laughed and drank cocktails. Bert, as they all called Mrs. Fordyce, was evidently in her glory.

Miss Sanderson went back to the city at about 2 o'clock, and afterward Jocelyn was sent for.

"My son has gotten us into a horrible mess, and I'm afraid you'll have to be generous about it," said Mrs. Fordyce, who was again alone except for Annette, and again being put through a pretty thorough course of beautifying. "We both tried to get hold of darling Sandy—she was my daughter-in-law's governess, you know, 20 years ago. She's marvelous, inasmuch as she simply doesn't permit anything —goes right along like a Gorgon and doesn't stand for any nonsense. We thought we couldn't get her—the poor thing supposed it was all taken for granted, and didn't take the trouble to cable. She hasn't any money anyway, that may have been the reason; she had a brother who drank it all up. Well, she's much older; I confess I had rather a shock when I saw her, but after all, we did send for her, and she was Janet's governess. It makes it so awkward! I wired Philip on the train explaining that she was here and what should I do about you, and caught him at Omaha or Ogden or somewhere, and here's his answer. He says, 'Get rid of Sanderson or Spotty won't come home.' He's evidently told Norma, which is so ridiculous, because a girl of that age ought to have no say at all—You're sticking that right into my head, Annette!—They'll both be here tomorrow morning, and so will poor Sandy; she's determined to hold her ground, and of course she feels that the way you look has influenced Phil, and no wonder. I love pretty people myself; I always have!"

At this point she paused for a few seconds to rub some injury to her scalp and whimper.

Jocelyn, who was sitting near Philip's mother, and who had watched her quietly through this long speech, said amiably, "There won't be any awkwardness as far as I'm concerned. But Mr. Fordyce said that his daughter disliked Miss Sanderson. And it does seem to me that even if she was the right person for Norma's mother, 20 years ago, she really isn't—It would be very trying for Norma—I can't see that she'd feel enough sympathy there to like it at all."

"Well, of course there's that to consider," the grandmother said on a long sigh. "But then what to say to poor Sandy?" she continued pensively. "She did pack up and get on a steamer, and it was quite pathetic to hear her saying that she'd get Norma out of smoking and all that. She evidently hasn't the slightest idea—! But then I was telling Mrs. Verrinder and Mrs. Kenworthy about it today," she went on, returning to her anxious tone, "and they said that she'd had the Foster girls and the Griscom girls and the little Yolander girl and been perfectly marvelous; she simply kept them in strait jackets! She's just been passed around from family to family—languages, you know, and all that. She speaks wonderful French. You speak French, I suppose?"

"Well, no, I don't," Jocelyn admitted.

"You see, there we are," Mrs. Fordyce said plaintively and helplessly; "we have to think of that. Sandy's wonderful at French and at German, too. She lived in Paris for eight years, and then afterward she had Janet there. Well! I wish Phil would get home, because I do feel that with all I have to do and not having seen Norma for almost two years—"

"When they get here," Jocelyn said soothingly in the pause, "we can settle everything."

"Well, they're due tomorrow, sometime after breakfast."

"You had only the son, Mrs. Fordyce?"

"I had only Phil. I never wanted him to marry all that money, although I knew Janet's family, knew her from the hour she was born, and I was terribly fond of the little wretch. I am still. She treated him abominally; she used to hurt his feelings and then laugh at him, but I don't think anyone's ever meant to her what Phil does. I believe she'd come back to him like a shot, but he'd never hear of it. She's been married twice anyway, and now there's some count—French or Italian—haven't you noticed that all the newspapers are hinting about it? I hope she doesn't. It doesn't sound any too good. I married again myself, but afterward I took my old name back; I never loved anyone but Philip's father. Married when I was 17, and of course a perfect little fool, and when he died I thought all men were like him—My heavens, here she is!"

The last ejaculation was in reference to a rush of feet suddenly audible in the hall, a voice calling, "Granny!" and the violent entry of a running girl, who stopped herself just short of collapse against Mrs. Fordyce, planted a kiss with gingerly care upon the very top of the carefully arranged curls and, wedging herself closely against tse older woman on the bench of the dressing table, burst into speech.

"Granny, you darling, you're too divoon—the hair-do—it's perfect—I met a beau of yours on the 'Forty-niner,' I'll tell you all about him later! Are you glad to see me? Do you realize how much trouble I'm going to make for you?"

* * *

She had been eying herself in the mirror as she spoke, and hurriedly applying lip rouge and powder, and catching up a loose strand of her rich black hair; now she reached for a cigaret, lighted it expertly, and observing that it was "divoon" to be home, subsided into a chair.

"No; but I mean it really is divoon," she said. "Phil asked if I remembered Miss Britton in the office, and I said of course I did! I remembered the hair. You'll soon find out I'm a perfect angel, Miss Britton, if I'm not shut up in some Italian or German place where every meal starts with macaroni or potato soup. I grew gross, positively gross. I really did, Gran. Where's the Sanderson? Have we killed her and stuck her body down a drain somewhere, or what?"

She was laughing; she was a little out of breath. But not perhaps as breathless as Jocelyn, who remembered this girl as a clumsy, big, already beautiful young thing of perhaps 14, on her last visit to San Francisco more than two years ago. She had been spoiled then, but in a simpler fashion.

This girl was like that earlier girl only in her beauty; she had the same thick, ivory-smooth skin, the same black eyes, with black silky lashes shadowing them, the same rich, smoky black hair and stain of pure apricot on the cheeks. But she was slender now, her hands looked actually delicate and thin, her movements had lost all their old heaviness and had the swift grace of a bird's flight.

* * *

There was too much artifice in evidence for her 16 years, or for any years; her hair hung in soft heraldic locks on either side of her face; it was curled slightly at the tips, and formed into tiny waves and feathers about her forehead. There was rouge on the cheeks whose natural color made it look thick and superfluous: her eyebrows were picked to a thread; her soft baby mouth was stiff with shining vermilion paste. Even her hands, that were still so childishly young, had been scraped and chalked and painted until they had an appearance of ivory claws tipped with wet blood.

And her clothes! Jocelyn had never seen such exquisiteness of dress. It lay in no special thing; it was the sum total of a hundred details that brought Jocelyn suddenly to the realization that here was actually one of the little princesses of the world, born to the purple, and wearing it with careless royal ease.

That painted little talon of a hand could write a check today that would mean comfort for some workingman and his family for all time; write another tomorrow; write a third, a fourth, a fifth, and go on writing them for a month, and her great fortune would not be touched or her bank balance seriously disturbed.

Unexpectedly, Jocelyn found herself desirous of being a part of Norma Fordyce's scheme. There was a fearful fascination in the mere contemplation of a life so unlike her own, so unlike that of most girls. Instinctively she smiled at Norma, the tolerant amused smile of an older woman who finds a mischievous child engaging, and Norma was quick to respond to it.

"Miss Britton thinks I'm terrible, don't you, Miss Britton?"

"I think you're all completely crazy," Jocelyn said simply. The girl laughed delightedly, and her grandmother said dryly, "Crazy is quite right. Any girl who climbs over a glass-topped wall and gets herself into an Italian hospital—"

"Darling, the hospital was perfectly beautiful," Norma interrupted negligently, "and the nuns were so sweet I almost became a Catholic. And long before I was on my feet Mademoiselle showed up—she's come from Paris—and then Count Coudeau showed up, and then the Drapers decided that they had to return unexpectedly to America, and Mrs. Draper was sure Marie Louise would be a wonderful companion for me, and so we came home in a brigade. And once again, Miss Britton, I was saved from a fate worse than death!"

"Your mother met you?"

"Mother met me, and took me to Mattie Marchand's that very hour to get clothes, and her new beau—did you meet him, Granny? Count Spazzolari, nine years older than I am. I don't think she'll marry him, I really don't although it's practically announced and all that. He's revolting."

"Well, I'm glad you're safely here," Mrs. Fordyce said, now fully clad and ready to depart, "and I hope we'll be able to keep you happy and give up a good time. I've got to go to May von Bahren's luncheon. Now do you think you'll be safe in Miss Britton's charge, and will you let her know what you want to do, and if Miss Sanderson telephones tell her to get in touch with your father at the office? D'you happen to know if he's coming to dinner?"

* * *

"I believe he is." Norma had gotten no further in her answer when a handsome woman walked into the room and said laughingly, "I know he is. And so am I. I telephoned the office to see if he was back, and had a chat with him, and Ned Randall and I are coming over to dinner, and to take you on at bridge afterward, Bert."

"Nita, you nice child," Mrs. Fordyce said cordially. "It's so good to see you!

"This is Norma, of course, but so grown up I'd never know her, and quite beautiful, too. Like Phil. Don't you think like Phil?"

"And Miss Britton, who going to help us keep an eye on Norma," Mrs. Fordyce said, with a jerk of her beautiful hat toward Jocelyn.

"Yes; Phil told me that, too. We'd all have taken on Norma and run her without any trouble at all, but perhaps it's better this way."

She fell into a gossipy review of a great many personalities almost entirely unknown to Jocelpn. Divorces, love affairs, scandals, deaths, the qualifications of this girl and the unattractiveness of that other, stories of bridge games and polo games and dinner and opera nights were all jumbled together in Mrs. Royces fascinating talk. 'Meggy Brice is giving a big dance, and there's the Parkers' baby party," Nita said to Norma. "You should have had cards to about ten things."

"I imagine they're all upstairs," Norma said indifferently.

"Remember, you're not out, Norma, and don't accept things that will put you into the debutante class," said her grandmother. "Just the school-vacation things. There's nothing so bad for a girl as to force parties too early."

"I'll remember." Norma shot a long-suffering glance at Jocelyn and Jocelyn perceived, with rising pleasure in her heart, that they were conspirators already.

"It's impossible to think the child is only sixteen,' Nita murmured. "She has all the manner of a grown woman!"

"Perhaps I've had a good many of the experiences of a grown woman," Norma said proudly. Jocelyn thought for the first time that she was very young, after all.

"There's no reason why you shouldn't go on with your studies, settle down here, and have your coming-out party winter after next," said Mrs. Fordyce definitely. "It's a lovely group here, and you'll get nowhere running around the world meeting new people."

"Nowhere at all," Norma agreed blandly. She turned to Jocelyn, "I'm going up for a bath; will you come with me, Miss Britton?"

"Leave Miss Britton here for a minute; I want to ask her to be kind enough to send a few telegrams," Mrs. Fordyce said. But when Norma had trailed away, leaving her furs and other impedimenta just where they had fallen, she turned to Jocelyn with a hurried air of warning. "Will you keep a very sharp eye on the telegrams she sends?" she said. "I don't want her to feel she's being watched. But at the same time we can't have her inviting strange French counts to the place. Do the best you can with her. Phil may have some ideas."

"She's destined to make a complete little ass of herself just as soon as she possibly can!" said Mrs. Royce with a rueful laugh.

* * *

"Well, she can't marry until she's eighteen," her grandmother said in nervousness and annoyance. "Even then, if she marries without her mother's permission and Phil's permission—the bulk of it all goes to a college library. Her grandfather was devoted to Phil, and I don't suppose he ever suspected that Janet would act the way she has—divorcing Phil and marrying people and running all over the country! She was his only child, and probably he hoped she'd settle down after she married. He died, anyway, before the second divorce. Nice old fellow. He could hardly write his name, but he was goodhearted. However, Norma isn't quite as free as she thinks she is, and for a year or two anyway we can keep a pretty firm hand over her. Phil's never hesitated to let anyone who was interested know that he had the right to say what he thought of her husband, and it makes a considerable difference with these counts and earls. I hope she'll marry a good American, but she won't. Not with the example Janet sets her. That was all, Miss Britton, except that I'd like to have you keep pretty close to her."

OHIO NEWSPAPER WOMEN TO MEET

Mansfielders to Attend 38th Annual Convention This Week-End at Lancaster.

Ohio newspaper women will converge on Lancaster this weekend for their 38th annual convention and the awarding of the annual prizes for best work done during the past year by members of the association.

Approximately $1,000 in cash will be awarded to winners of stories, features and pages which have been judged the "best" by newspaper editors and publishers outside the state of Ohio. The News-Journal is again sponsoring the contest for the best news story written by a woman on a paper under 25,000 circulation.

The convention will be held at the new Hotel Lancaster which is entirely reserved for the occasion, Oct. 18-20 inclusive. Friday night Kenneth T. Downs, International News Service war correspondent, who spoke in Mansfield last Wednesday, will be the guest of honor at a party. The contest luncheon is scheduled for Saturday noon and the annual banquet for Saturday night. Winners of the contests will be introduced over the air by Peter Grant of WLW.

Among the speakers will be Mary Morris, ace news photographer for PM, new New York newspaper, and who was formerly with Associated Press; Phil Porter, Cleveland editor and columnist; and Myron Scott, Dayton news photographer.

Several members of The News-Journal staff will attend the convention.

CHARRED $71 IN PURSE ACCEPTED

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(U.P.)—Joe Megli whistled "Pennies from Heaven" and thanked his lucky stars for the Treasury Department.

A month ago Megli's place of employment burned and in his haste to escape the flames he left his wallet, containing $71, in a pocket of his coat, in the building.

When the ashes had cooled, he took the charred, unrecognizable remains of what was once his wallet and $71 to a bank. Bank officials forwarded them to the Treasury Department in Washington. Some time later Megli received $71 from Washington.

Penn Once Paid $4.68 for One Pound of Coffee

To the millions of Americans to whom the morning cup of coffee is as much a part of the daily routine as getting out of bed, it may seem unbelievable that for many decades coffee was a luxury enjoyed by only a privileged few.

Yet William Penn paid $4.68 for a pound of coffee and for a century or more thereafter coffee as a beverage was even more treasured than rare wines and liquors.

Each day 4,000,000 women walk into the grocery stores of the United States and each buy a pound of coffee. Another 4,000,000 will do the same tomorrow and at the end of the week ninety-five of every hundred families in the United States will have replaced the coffee in their pantries.

Every day in that same week roasters will have delivered 1,000,000 pounds of coffee to hotels and restaurants throughout the land.

Every week 24,000,000 pounds of coffee go through the kitchen coffee pots at home, 6,000,000 through the urns downtown. This week America will drink 30,000,000 pounds of coffee.

FINGERPRINTS CURB FORGERS

LANSING, Mich. —(U.P.)— Capt. Ira H. Marmon, chief of the identification bureau at state police headquarters, believes the check forgery loss in the United States can be reduced $4,000,000 annually if business men will adopt one simple precaution.

The precaution is: Require strangers who want to cash checks to place thumbprints on the checks. The reason this remedy will be so effective, Marmon said, is that a relatively few professionals are responsible for most of the forgeries and their prints are on file with law enforcement authorities.

State police have distributed 2,000 pamphlets to business men to show them how the prints should be taken.

WOULD YOU CUT DOWN THE APPLE TREE?

You'll probably find a few bad apples in a bushel of good ones. That's the way it is with beer retailing in America.

There are hundreds of thousands of wholesome, law-abiding beer retail establishments that sell good beer—the refreshing, appetizing beverage of moderation. At the same time, there is a handful of undesirable, anti-social taverns. Unfortunately, these few outlaw establishments bring discredit to the entire beer industry.

To protect your right to drink good beer, the Brewing Industry wants such anti-social retailers eliminated entirely. It has instituted a "clean-up or close-up" program—now in effect in some states and being extended.

We'd like you to know about this socially important program. May we tell you about it in an interesting free booklet? Write: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N. Y.

Big Job Ahead for Americans

THOUGHTFUL Americans have much to say lately about the responsibility of the United States toward democracy and civilization through and after these chaotic times. This nation, without seeking it, and without any selfish ambition to direct or dominate any other nation, has come into a position of tremendous power. Natural resources, manufactured wealth, our type of government, the spirit of our people, all these things combine to give us first place in potential usefulness in the world today and tomorrow.

John Buchan, the late governor-general of Canada, wrote in his autobiography that this country had once created a wholly new type of political federation, in which the rights of individuals were fully secured and at the same time the good of all made paramount. What man has done, man can do again, he said, and affirmed his belief that America would do it.

It is impossible to see far ahead today. Increasing boldness on the part of aggressors generally and the outbreak of new threats on scattered fronts, make immediate developments unpredictable.

It is not events, however, but our attitude toward them that counts. We must have a long range certainty that our free way of life is the good way, a spirit in which events—however disconcerting or tragic—are met courageously. We must plan for inevitable changes so that they may be effected wisely and with as little violence as possible.

Parents Held Responsible

ANNOUNCEMENT that parents are to be held responsible for payment of property damage done by their children while engaging in either premature or timely Halloween "pranks" is not only in accordance with law but is also good sense.

Like it or not, there is an obligation resting on parents in the matter of behavior of their minor children—including payment for any damage that may be done by undisciplined youngsters.

While parental responsibilities are rather lightly regarded in some families, the fact remains that home training is the first line of defense against juvenile delinquency, and that it is up to parents to make sure that their own children behave properly, rather than passing this task along to an already over-taxed police department.

Spell-Bound Statesmen

AFTER reading the last three articles of Jules Romains, dealing with the mysteries of Daladier, Gamelin, and King Leopold, an American still fails to understand why these men acted as they did in a great crisis. Yet certain points are clarified.

Daladier could see the dangers, yet at the psychological moment was unable to act. Gamelin, also, saw the necessity of certain preliminary moves and associations, but, not being able to get these moves made in time, thought all was lost. Both were baffled by the changing attitude of Leopold, who wanted peace so much that he could not believe, even when war was at his gates, that it could touch his little country.

In reading of these three men, all of whom wanted the best for France and Belgium and ended by inviting the worst, one has a curious sense of a spell woven, of men bent in one direction, stopped suddenly in their tracks and compelled to change their course.

Trying to analyze, the reader comes to see that it was at root a spell of fear, a growing belief in the absolute invincibility of Hitler. He held them bound, as a snake is supposed to hold the birds it is making ready to swallow. Chamberlain, too, seems to have suffered the same strange fate.

Only Churchill, clear-headed and with his feet on the ground, with a united, fearless people behind him, could break the spell, see the foe for what he is—a mere human being bent on destruction, who can be stopped by other men of strength and purpose.

Volunteers and Selectees

LET it be understood, now and always, that there's nothing at all humiliating in being drafted into the military forces defending this democracy. It is an honor as well as a duty, for those able to serve their country in this capacity. Not the least stigma attaches to men who calmly await the choice by lot, or those who shall be called first and those who will follow. It is normal and honorable procedure.

At the same time, most people will probably confess admiration for the fellows who prefer to volunteer before the draft starts. Some of them say, fatalistically, that they've got to go sooner or later anyway, and it may as well be now. To others it is a matter of pride; they don't want people to think they had to be hauled into the national defense, and don't want to feel that way about it themselves. And it must be admitted that they are generally regarded with admiring approval.

Eventually these groups will merge in the public consciousness and the details of their enlistment will be usually unimportant, except for the occasional "slackers" who try to dodge military duty.

Worth-While Suggestion

"THERE is bound to be a great appreciation of premium income at least during the next three or four years," says J. Frederick Essary, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, addressing insurance men. "If happily by that time the international picture has clarified without our being drawn into the war, we must gird ourselves for the reaction that is inevitable."

He adds that "wise agencies" will keep their future expansion under control and build up reserves to absorb later shocks.

That sounds like good advice for almost everyone. It's somewhat like the old advice given by a seer: "Be bold, be bold, but be not too bold."

Albert Einstein is now a naturalized American citizen—which may serve to bring up the national arithmetic average to some extent.

Conflicting Polls Confuse Analysts

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Gen. Hugh (Iron Pants) Johnson has predicted that after this election the Gallup poll may go the way of the "Literary Digest" poll after 1936. A counter prediction could be that after this election the reputation of Emil Hurja may be a bit tarnished.

The point is that Emil Hurja is now predicting that Wendell Willkie will sweep the country. He thinks even the Republican high command simply fails to realize the "ground swell for Willkie."

Similarly the Dunn poll will be discredited if Roosevelt should be reelected, and the Dunn poll was amazingly accurate in the Lehman-Dewey election of two years ago.

* * *

BUT there are some amazing discrepancies between the polls. Take the state of Ohio, which is enormously important because of its 24 electoral votes, and because it has invariably been with the winner of presidential elections all the way back to Spanish war days.

Gallup gives Ohio to Roosevelt by a percentage of 53 to 47 in his early October poll. Emil Hurja gives Ohio to Willkie. Before proceeding, it might be recalled that it was Emil Hurja who gave Jim Farley the figures for his amazingly accurate forecasts both in 1932 and in 1936.

It so happens that the independent polls in Ohio, those taken by the Scripps papers and those taken by the Columbus Dispatch, would seem to indicate that the state is going heavily for Willkie.

In its poll of 13 counties, the Scripps poll indicates a plurality for Willkie in those counties of 25,766. In 1936 Roosevelt carried those same counties by 38,308.

* * *

THE Columbus Dispatch poll, which visiting political reporters have studied every two years for a generation, showed a total recently of 11,540 for Willkie to 11,077 for Roosevelt. This would not mean very much, but every one polled is asked how he voted four years ago, and the Dispatch states that 3,061 of the Willkie votes had switched from Roosevelt.

This is not an attempt to prove that the Gallup poll is wrong, or that Hurja, or Dunn, or the Scripps or Dispatch polls are wrong. But it certainly is apparent that after this election certain polls will no longer command much respect.

Curiously enough, one of the severest critics of the Gallup poll, prior to this campaign, has been Charles Michelson, director of publicity for the Roosevelt administration, and prior to that for John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse.

Michelson has repeatedly pointed out in the last few years the absurdity of all polls, and referred sneeringly to the Literary Digest poll. He might also have recalled the New York Herald poll, which was a "Bible" to the politicians up to 1916, when it went so wrong on California, giving that state to Hughes by two to one.

It is rather interesting also that several shrewd political reporters who have toured Nebraska and Kansas lately have told the writer that Nebraska is certain for Willkie, but Kansas is fighting ground.

The Gallup poll gives Kansas to Willkie by 51 to 49. More astonishing is the fact that the early October Gallup poll gives Minnesota to Roosevelt by 56 to 44. Every report reaching this writer is that Minnesota is much stronger for Willkie than is Kansas.

After Your Bout with Hay Fever

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HAY FEVER is an intensive bout of allergy which lasts for about six to eight weeks. It leaves the victim weak and subject to sets of symptoms which hit the body in parts that are especially likely to allergic manifestations — the nose and the bronchial tubes.

One of these is post-seasonal hay fever asthma. With some of my patients the asthma used to come on at the end of the hay fever season and last until well along in the cold weather. Asthma is a most curious kind of a disease. What brings it on? All the subjects have stories to tell and they regard the condition with wonderment and awe. "Three out of every ten particularly mention that laughter brings on an attack," write Drs. June B. and Milton Cohen in their book Your Allergy and What to Do About It (J. B. Lippincott).

With a post-seasonal hay fever asthmatic, any exertion, even eating a meal, may set up an attack.

When in an attack, the asthmatic often assumes a position that looks very uncomfortable. "One person," relates Dr. Cohen, "who had suffered from chronic asthma for a number of years related that he had learned after weeks of practice to remain in one of these peculiar attitudes for at least an hour at a time without moving.

The only way for him to drop off comfortably into his slumbers without the incidence of an asthmatic attack was to recline on his side, prop up his chest at an angle with his pillow and to hold up his hand with crooked elbow, using a silk handkerchief to prevent perspiration."

Year Round Treatments Best.

Seasonal hay fever runs insidiously into perennial or all-year-round hay fever. A young person had the usual bout with hay fever in the late summer, it disappeared regularly about the middle of October. Then one year it seemed to stop but a persistent cough followed and the course of this was interrupted with short attacks of asthma. Treatment undertaken by an experienced expert at this stage will save lots of trouble in the future. The body may at this stage develop an [illegible] to an increased number of inhalants—the dandruff that comes from the skin of dogs, cats and horses, house dusts and cosmetics, such as face powder.

Thus a hay fever patient acquires multiple sensitizations and finds to his dismay that his hay fever does not leave him with the first frost, but hangs on in spots all the year around.

It is for this reason that allergists lately are advocating all year round treatment even for seasonal hay fever. Such management recognizes the different sensitizations as they arise and by applying vaccine treatments can prepare the sufferer to resist his invasion during the hay fever season better.

This Is Ohio

Geauga County, Ohio, produces more maple products than any similar area in the nation. The annual county income from this industry is approximately $200,000.

The principal products are sugar and syrup, 300,000 gallons of syrup and 10,000 pounds of sugar finding a ready market. More than 1,180,000 trees are tapped annually and new groves are maturing. The undulating terrain seems especially adapted to growth of the sugar maple.

The season usually opens early in March. Residents have instituted the annual maple festival to advertise the quality and quantity of their products.

Hull Cools Off Jap Militarists, Declaration of War Improbable

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—When Cordell Hull wants to turn on his Tennessee mountain wrath he can do a magnificent job, and the word which leaked out of his inner sanctum is that this was the kind of a job he did when Japanese Ambassador Horinouchi called on him just after the United States had decided to recall its citizens from China.

The Hull dressing down, together with internal reactions in Japan, seems to have cooled off the Japanese somewhat. Intelligence reports reaching Washington indicate that danger of a Japanese declaration of war against Britain, over the opening of the Burma Road, is ebbing.

What the Japanese are expected to do is to subject the Burma Road, with its incoming supplies of munitions for the Chinese army, to as intensive a bombing as is possible from air bases in South China and adjacent French Indo-China.

As far as any attack upon the United States is concerned, all the reports received in army and navy circles—and they have been studying the situation as carefully as they know how—are that Japan cannot and will not risk war with the United States.

In the first place, her navy has fuel oil for only two and a half months. Her army has gasoline for only three months. And perhaps even more important, there is reported to be considerable division of opinion inside the Japanese government.

One group, headed by Prince Konoye, feels that Japan is merely being used by Hitler and the Axis to scare the United States away from more aid to the British. In fact, Konoye vigorously opposed signing the alliance, but finally had to yield to more aggressive Foreign Minister Matsuoka and the war minister. In addition, American observers detect an uneasy feeling among the Japanese people and increasing rumblings of unrest.

Note—Few foreign policies have met with greater unanimity inside the state department than the American attitude on the Far East. There have been some differences with other cabinet members who wanted to take an even stronger stand, but inside the state department, Hull and Welles are 100 per cent together.

Zipper Act!

ENCOUNTERING Attorney General Bob Jackson in the White House offices, Marguerite LeHand, the president's personal secretary, complained about the stringencies of the Hatch Act.

"Why, you know," she said, "it even prevents us from wearing buttons."

"Buttons!" grinned Jackson in mock surprise. "I don't think there is anything in the Hatch Act forcing people to wear zippers.'

* * *

Wallace and Willkie.

HENRY WALLACE knows how Wendell Willkie felt when they threw eggs in Pontiac, for Wallace also ran into tough treatment out in North Dakota. He knows only the last name of the offender—McMurray of Pasadena, Cal.—but he will remember him for a long time.

McMurray was traveling on the same train with Wallace, occupying a drawing room in another car. When the train stopped at Mandan, N. D., Wallace stepped to the rear platform to speak.

McMurray left the train and joined the crowd. As Wallace launched into his speech, McMurray called out from the crowd, "It stinks!"

Six miles farther on, at Bismarck, Wallace addressed a crowd from a baggage truck standing beside the train. This time McMurray conceived the bright idea of taking the train away and leaving Wallace behind. He gave a starting signal to the engineer, and the train began to move.

Passengers who had left the train to hear Wallace speak scrambled to get back aboard. Wallace himself jumped from the truck and swung onto the moving train.

McMurray completely broke up the meeting. But the sorest members of the party were the railroad men who denounced McMurray's hoax as a sophomoric trick endangering the safety of passengers.

Future Commanders.

THE WORD in the American Legion is that Milo Warner, Toledo attorney, wasn't the only national commander picked at the Boston convention. According to insiders, secret selections also were made for 1941 and '42, as well as the state which will be host to the 1943 convention.

Master mind of this long-range plan was smooth-working Ben Doris of Oregon, the "king maker" who put over Warner. The story of Doris' astute maneuvers is related by insiders as follows:

Three leading candidates were in the field for national commander at Boston — Warner, Lyle Stambaugh of North Dakota, and Roane Waring of Tennessee. Doris, managing the campaign for his old buddy Warner, made a quiet poll and found that none of the trio had enough votes to win by himself. So he got them together and warned that unless they pooled their strength an outsider might run away with the prize.

Doris advised a coalition. After a long palaver, it was decided to call in former National Commander Frank Belgrano of San Francisco, boss of the powerful California delegation and popular with the rank and file. The proposition was to give California the 1943 convention in return for help on the commandership.

Belgrano, who had previously talked to Doris about the 1943 convention, readily agreed. Then Doris proposed that Belgrano make the choice among the three candidates, deciding who should get the commandership this year, who the next year, and who at the 1942 convention.

When that, too, was agreed upon, Belgrano tagged them in this order—Warner first, Stambaugh second, and Waring third.

Of course, this secret pact is not binding on the Legion. It is strictly a deal among the group of king makers and there is nothing to prevent the Legion membership from deciding otherwise. It's up to Doris and his bloc to make it stick.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — (Questions arising from selective service are as thick as grass-hoppers in a swarm. Following is further effort to answer some of them.)

Q. Suppose I refuse to answer the questions put to me by the registrar?

A. The registrars already have instructions how to handle you. Recalcitrants will be urged and argued with, but if they persist, witnesses will be called and the case referred to the United States district attorney. For willfully obstructing the draft, a man is subject to the same penalty as for willfully dodging the draft: not more than five years in the penitentiary, nor more than $10,000 fine.

Q. I am moving to another city the day after draft registration. What should I do?

A. Notify your local board immediately when you change address, no matter when it occurs after registration.

Q. What is the difference between the registrars and the local boards?

A. The registrars are merely the registration machinery (in most cases it will be the same as the election machinery) and after October 16 their task will be finished. The local boards are permanent, voluntary, unpaid groups of three or more men, with a paid clerk, presiding over an area of approximately 30,000 population. Attached to the boards, but not a part of them are the examining physicians and government appeal agents. It will be the duty of the board to classify all registrants and notify those men called into service.

* * *

Q. In our local board district there are many factory workers and there is no labor man on the board who has any understanding of labor problems. Is there anything we can do about it?

A. Yes. Appeal to your governor and ask him to appoint such a representative of labor to the board. Those in charge of selective service at national headquarters here are particularly eager to have these boards made up of men of high standing who are representative of the community they serve. In the case of appeal boards it is stipulated that the boards should include one member from labor, one from industry, a physician, a lawyer and where applicable, one member from agriculture.

Q. Is there any way I can find out now what are the physical requirements for men who will get into Class 1?

A. Not specifically, but roughly (and with a few minor changes) they are the same as those for the army. For example, the army accepts men only if they are five feet four or taller; selectees may be placed in Class 1 who are only five feet or taller.

* * *

Q. I would like to do my military service immediately. Can I enlist for one year?

A. Yes, the army recently opened enlistments to men desiring to serve only one year and having served that year, you will have the same status as a man who has served under selective service—not again subject to call for military training in peacetime. If you enlist in the national guard, now being called into training, you will be subject to membership in the guard for two years after your year of training, but only at the armory, during two weeks of summer encampment, or in case of an emergency for which the guard is called out.

Q. I am 19, have finished high school and would like to take my military training before I enter college. How can I do it?

A. You may enlist either in the national guard being called to training or in the army. Youths of 18 or over, with permission of their parents, are accepted for all branches of military service.

A Farmer's Diary

Making Doughnuts

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE orange bus grinds on the gravel and a quick rush of feet upon the porch announces that the children are home from school. The front door bursts open, and a shout goes up—"Hooray! Mom's making doughnuts!"

The odor of hot lard permeates the little house. The kitchen table is covered with rings of dough, cut ready for cooking. The five-year-old boy, with an expression of pride, pulls a few finished doughnuts out of a paper bag in which he has been sugaring them. He lays them carefully upon a plate, and two pairs or more of outstretched hands are volunteering to see whether they're any good.

The baby, in his highchair, and the three-year-old on a straight chair in the corner, are quiet, for once. Both have sugar on their faces.

Mother presides at the big dutch oven, on the stove half full of hot fat. Newly dropped in rings of dough send up frisky bubbles, then suddenly pop to the surface and begin to swell and brown. Eagerly the children watch as the doughnuts are turned, browned on the other side, then lifted out on a long handled fork and dropped into the waiting sugary sack. One youngster picks up the silver thimble used for cutting holes, and begins to experiment.

Outside the wind whirls across the lawn, catches fallen maple leaves, and sends them skyward October — crisp cool days—warm doughnuts after a day at school! How many happy childhood memories have to do with food!

My grandmother had a brown stone jar with a wooden lid, on the third pantry shelf. There, findings were always good. Sometimes it was molasses cookies or "mule ears" or jelly tarts. But in the fall there were frying sprees in the back summer kitchen, with a deep kettle of hot lard, and then the crock overflowed with doughnuts, and twisted "fried cakes."

"But do be careful not to get the fat afire," she always said. And then, when we inquired, she always told a fear inspiring tale of what had happened to some children whom she knew, who meddled with doughnuts when nobody older was there to help.

Grandmother's warning impressed me. Let me pass it on to you. Use a deep kettle of heavy metal—have it half full—keep the fat out of the fire. Don't eat more than six warm doughnuts in a row.

INTENTIONS OF SOVIET TROOPS REMAIN SECRET

The London air ministry reported that British bombers, defying bad weather, pounded many objectives during the night—including the Kiel and Wilhelmshaven naval bases, oil plants, the great Krupp armaments works at Essen, German airdromes. There was the usual "nightly offensive" against channel "invasion" ports from Ostend to Le Havre.

In Athens and Istanbul, in Belgrade and Sofia, official circles asserted this week's events might tell the story of whether the Balkan peninsula — long Europe's powder keg—would be drawn into the European conflict.

Well-informed quarters in the Rumanian capital reported that Soviet monitors had sunk two Rumanian patrol boats in the Danube region recently.

Turkish newspapers emphasized that Germany's movement of troops into Rumania contained a threat to Russia.

Amid reports that the Axis powers were putting pressure on Yugoslavia to abandon her neutrality and grant them military concessions, Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic declared his country was "created in blood and only in that way can territory be taken from her." Italian troops are reported concentrated in Albania next to southern Yugoslavia and Greece.

The British, reporting new raids on Germany and Nazi-held channel ports, claimed that a recent RAF attack on the Nazi-held French port of Lorient killed "over 3,000 German soldiers" in the sinking of two transports.

The Italian high command said light Italian warships sank a British cruiser and damaged an aircraft carrier and another cruiser in a naval battle off British Malta, but the British, while acknowledging the possibility of such a clash, said it had no information to bear out the Italian claims.

The Italians admitted the loss of a destroyer and two torpedo boats.

The Chinese-Japanese war flares up again with the Chinese claiming the recapture of the strategic Yangtze river port of Metang, and a guerrilla artillery action that destroyed 14 grounded Japanese bombers at Ichang in Hupeh province.

Japanese official and press circles reflected concern at the U. S. state department's intention of sending special liners to remove Americans from the Orient.

Blue Shirts in Shanghai Active

SHANGHAI —(INS)— Japanese troops today cordoned off the Japanese-controlled Hongkew section of Shanghai and closed all bridges leading to the international settlement.

The action was taken after a Chinese gunman fired on an automobile filled with Japanese gendarmes. Today's incident was the fifth terroistic act in Hongkew in the past two weeks.

Last week, Fu Saio-En, Japanese puppet-mayor of greater Shanghai, was assassinated in his Hongkew home.

The Chinese "blue shirt" terrorists, avoiding the international settlement, have penetrated Japanese-held territory with audacity in recent weeks.

Armed Japanese troops took up positions on the Range and Mordszechuen roads and thoroughly searched every passerby.

On the international settlement side of the Hongkew bridges municipal police were stationed in an apparent move to cooperate with the Japanese gendarmes.

Japs Alarmed by Roosevelt Speech

TOKYO —(U.P.)— The possibility of an extension of the war in which Japan would clash with the United States was mentioned with increasing frankness by newspapers today as Japan interpreted President Roosevelt's Dayton, O., speech as a definite and official declaration against its alliance with Germany and Italy.

It was evident that the president had made a great impression in Japan. Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, refused to comment "in the absence of official information," and added: "in these times the less statements, the better."

The newspaper Chugai said that the foreign office viewed the speech calmly, because it undoubtedly was a political gesture against Wendell Willkie.

Domei, the chief news agency, said that the government's policy would not be affected in the least by the president's remarks.

Newspapers, which often are inspired in such instances, were franker in their comment.

SIAM DEFENDS NORTH BORDER

Denies Axis Cooperation in Burma Road Dispute.

BANGKOK—(U.P.)—Semi-official sources said today that Thailand (Siam) army commanders are taking measures along the northern border to prevent possible territorial violations in connection with the reopening of the Burma road to China.

However, publicity Minister Vilas Osthanonat denied reports that Thailand was cooperating with the Axis powers to aid Japan in keeping the Burma road closed.

FDR ASKS FOR CHEST SUPPORT

Declares Service To Local Community Adds Strength To Nation.

"Events abroad have warned us not only of the need of planes and tanks, and ships and guns; they have also warned us of the need of grit and sacrifice, of daring and devotion, and all those intangible things which go to make up a nation's morale."

The president spoke of the adoption of mass production in industry and the resultant problem of unemployment involving men of elderly and middel age. This problem, he said, was "too great to be solved by the good will of individual business men on a street corner."

Ohio Democrats Holding Rally

COLUMBUS —(INS)— In the wake of President Roosevelt's visit to Ohio, Democratic national and state campaign leaders gathered in Columbus today for a statewide political rally.

While Roosevelt's tour of defense areas last Friday and Saturday was described by White House aides as non-political, local Democratic leaders pointed to huge welcoming crowds in various cities as proof that Ohioans were interested in the 1940 campaign.

Hitherto, both Republicans and Democrats had complained that voters were not interested in politics, especially state and municipal election races, although both Roosevelt and Willkie drew huge crowds.

With only three weeks to go before election, campaign directors started down the home stretch with a new vigor in their race for support.

Political observers asserted that the Democratic rally was arranged by national and state campaign leaders to convince party followers that the two groups actually were in accord. Before the day ended, 4,000 Democrats from all parts of the state were expected to attend.

Publicity sent out on the rally by the Democratic national committee in Ohio declared that "appearing on the same program will be National Committeeman Charles Sawyer, Cincinnati, State Central Committeeman Albert Horstman, Dayton; State Executive Committee Chairman J. Freer Bittinger, Ashland, and former Governor Martin L. Davey, Kent."

The rally was to wind up tonight with U. S. Sen. Scott W. Lucas, of Illinois, as the principal speaker.

As the campaign drew to a close, Democratic county organizations throughout the state sponsored meetings in the hope of winning votes.

An ox roast in Wood county is expected to attract a huge gathering tomorrow. Principal speakers at the gathering are to be Mrs. Lloyd Stark, wife of Governor Stark, of Missouri, and William G. Pickrel, former lieutenant governor of Ohio.

Westinghouse Co. Has $93,700,000 In Defense Work

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company is working on approximately $93,700,000 of orders for national defense materials, George H. Bucher, president, said today.

Actual delivery of about $9,000,000 in orders will be made before the end of 1940, Bucher added. Some cannot be delivered before 1943 despite accelerated manufacturing efforts. Deliveries will reach a peak of nearly $31,500,000 in 1941-42.

Much of the equipment on order is for other industries which are expanding facilities for their own share of defense work.

The South Philadelphia and East Pittsburgh works will "bear the brunt of the present orders," Bucher said. Other plants participating in defense work are in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Chicago and Boston. The Mansfield plant is not working on defense orders, however.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The rural electrification administration today approved award of a contract to W. R. Cpinam Co., Columbus, for building 165 miles of power lines for the Belmont Electric Cooperative, Inc., of St. Clairsville, O. The bid was $117,-1316.

TURKS, GREEKS DEFEND BORDER

Mass Half-Million Soldiers on Bulgarian Frontier as Nazis Threaten.

Reuters said that for the time being the British legation will remain in Rumania in charge of the British minister and that the 20 members of the legation staff were the only Britons who had left Rumania over the week-end.

In London authoritative quarters said they had no further official news regarding the Rumanian situation.

But they said dispatches from British Minister Sir Reginald Hoare had convinced them that any German infiltration into Rumania was on a small scale and was confined to technicians. These circles said they were satisfied that the German infiltration was "not military in character."

With complete severance of Anglo-Rumanian relations expected within a few days, the London Daily Telegraph said today that Soviet Russia reportedly served an ultimatum on German-controlled Rumania over recent frontier incidents.

The dispatch said Moscow also threatened to send the Red army marching into the Rumanian province of Moldavia.

Balkan circles took the ultimatum report "with skepticism," the Telegraph said, but added that Russo-Rumanian armed clashes appeared to have occurred and that Soviet naval monitors had sunk two Rumanian naval patrol boats at the mouth of the Danube.

According to another report, the paper said, a Soviet warship sank another Rumanian naval vessel while the latter was returning from the Russian port of Odessa and ignored a warning not to pass a prohibited stretch of Russian territorial water.

Germans Demand End of Quarrel

BERLIN—(INS)—Having "planted its flag" in Rumania, Germany worked busily today to eradicate the last vestige of the Rumano-Hungarian quarrel over treatment of their respective minorities in exchanged Balkan territory.

In this campaign to maintain tranquility in the Balkans, informed quarters declared, Germany has the full assistance of Italy.

It was disclosed that Hungary is receiving an implied warning not to "over-step the limits," which the Hungarian press already has done in the eyes of Germany.

To bring about speedy settlement of the nationalities issue, authentic German quarters said, the Rome-Berlin axis is now carrying on "brass tack talks" with representatives of both Hungary and Rumania who are visiting Berlin.

When his blank has been filled out by the registrar, each man who registers will receive a small certificate of registration which he must carry with him.

President Roosevelt was expected to send the nomination of Clarence A. Dykstra to the senate today for appointment as national selective service director. Dykstra is president of the University of Wisconsin.

Local draft boards—three in Richland county—will be named by the president before Thursday so they can go to work classifying the registrants.

It was announced today at Washington that volunteers and draftees probably will not see active service in camps until December at the earliest.

Army officials said the delay is due to heavy enlistments in the regular army and the lack of facilities and equipment for men. The army had planned to start calling men early in November.

War department officials announced that today and Tuesday are the last days men may volunteer for the regular army. After tomorrow, one-year volunteers will be taken in through local draft boards, and men who want to serve in the regular armed forces will have to sign up for three years.

NOON SERVICE READ AT NAZARENE CHURCH

Miss Helen Louise Reeder, Edwin S. Stitt Exchange Vows As Bride's Uncle Officiates In Private Ceremony.

AT NOON yesterday Miss Helen Louise Reeder came up the aisle of the Nazarene church to exchange the nuptial vows with Edwin Sylvester Stitt as her uncle, Rev. James Leonard, Galion, performed the ceremony. Miss Reeder, daughter of Mrs. Martha Reeder, 188 Miller street, was attired in a soldier blue street-length dress with wine accessories and a corsage of gardenias and white rosebuds.

Mrs. Roy Maneese was matron of honor, and she wore a wine colored dress with black accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. Mr. Maneese, stepbrother of the bridegroom, was best man, and Lester Mouser and Ivan Reid, Galion, were the ushers.

The nuptial music was played by Mrs. Otis Johnson, pianist, for the private ceremony.

Mr. Stitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Maneese, 66 East Fourth street, attended Mansfield high school and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. His wife also attended the high school.

A reception followed at the bride's home. The bridal table was decorated with a wedding cake and candles, and a dinner was served to members of the families. Later Mr. and Mrs. Stitt left for a trip to Indiana. For traveling the bride was attired in a black and white crepe dress with black accessories. Upon their return to the city the couple will be at home at 184½ West Fifth street.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Orran Osborne, Mt. Vernon; Mr. and Mrs. Lester Ruhl, Fredericktown; Ray Kerr, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Kerr and family, and Mrs. Clara Vanatta, Mt. Gilead.

Crestline Couple Exchange Vows at Parish House Altar

In a ceremony performed Saturday morning at the parish house of St. Peter's Catholic church, Mrs. Lillian Gibson of Crestline became the bride of Edmund H. Wagner of this city. Rt. Rev. Msgr. R. C. Goebel read the single ring service, and the couple was attended by Miss Florence Keller of Upper Sandusky and the bridegroom's brother, Ralph Wagner of Norwalk.

The bride was attired in an afternoon dress of rosewood crepe, trimmed with pin tucking and rhinestone clips. Her accessories were black, and white roses and lobelia formed her shoulder corsage. Miss Keller wore a soldier blue crepe dress with black accessories and a pink rosebud corsage.

Immediately following the wedding, the couple left for a short trip. They will make their future home at 340 North Seltzer street in Crestline. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Corbin of Kirby, is a graduate of Wharton high school and Ohio Northern university at Ada. She taught in the public schools at Van Wert before going to Crestline, where she now has a class in kindergarten training. Mr. Wagner was graduated from Heidelberg university at Tiffin and is employed as an accountant at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

OPENS HOME.

Mrs. Paul Ackerman will be hostess for a meeting of the Child Guidance club this evening at her home, 58 Harter avenue. This newly organized group meets on the second and fourth Monday of each month.

Informally Speaking...

Oct. 14, 1940.

Lucy, dear:

THE weather has been so beautiful here of late that we were looking for you to drive over to see us yesterday, but when you didn't we took a drive down to the Charles Mill and Pleasant Hill dams and Mohican State park. . . . It was the first time I'd been down there in the fall, and really the scenery was beautiful—those hills just a blaze of burnished red and gold.

This would certainly be an ideal time of the year for vacationing, and I've come to think that folks who waited until now to go on trips were much smarter than those of us who went jaunting over the countryside in mid-summer. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Ward Holdridge left yesterday for New York City, where they will visit for the next week. . . . They drove east and while they're gone, their young daughter, Susie, is staying with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rollin Hunsicker.

* * * * *

Also eastward bound are Mrs. George Stephens, Mrs. E. R. Hartman, Mrs. Fred Herring and Mrs. Lois Anson. . . . They left this morning for New York City. . . . They're driving and plan to take in several new Broadway shows during their stay in the big city. . . . They'll probably return home next week-end. . . . Perhaps all these Mansfielders will get together while in New York this week. . . . Mrs. J. E. Upson is there now too. . . . She arrived last Thursday and is stopping at the Westbury hotel on Madison avenue.

* * * * *

THE past week-end was a busy one for a group of Mansfield school teachers as they were in Dayton attending the third state convention of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary educational sorority, at the Biltmore hotel. . . . Lucille Lorow, Pearl Danback and Ruth Dunham went down on Friday, while Reba Robinson, Anita Strouch, Ava Pettit, Lucille Beattie and Dora McLeod arrived there on Saturday. . . . At this, the organization's largest convention (which was attended by some 500 members), Margaret Wheeler of our town was appointed to serve a four year term on the state scholarship committee. . . . Edna Morgan of Cleveland was elected new state president, and one of the founders, Dr. Annie Webb Blanton of Texas, was in attendance. . . . Just about the most exciting thing of the whole convention, according to the teachers who went down from here, was that they saw Capt. and Mrs. Elliot Roosevelt on several occasions and even lunched at the table next to theirs one noon.

* * * * *

SOME folks from here were visiting down in your neighborhood over the week-end. . . . Marguritte Boyer, Dorothy Leech and Marge Zimmerman were in Columbus visiting Mary Lou Moorehead, who's attending Bliss Business college there this year.

* * * * *

Getting his share of pledge duties these days is Robert Rhoads, a freshman at Washington University of Engineering. . . . His parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Rhoads, have just received a letter telling them Bob was pledged to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

* * * * *

A VISITOR in our town now is Mrs. Edna O. DeVore of Woodsfield. She arrived recently and is a guest at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. Winchell DeVore. . . . She's planning to stay for about two weeks.

* * * * *

Mrs. Norman E. Leonard returned home yesterday following a week's visit in Berea. . . . She was staying there with her brother-in-law and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Dale Steward, and took a couple trips into Cleveland before coming back to Mansfield. . . . While we're speaking of Cleveland, I mustn't forget to tell you that Florence MacDonald was there yesterday attending a meeting of the Ohio Academy of Teachers of Singing in the Fine Arts building on Euclid avenue. . . . She was accompanied on the trip by Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Shreffler.

* * * * *

AND that seems to be about that in the way of news for today, Lucy. I'll write you again next week, but in the meantime, why don't you plan to drive over next Sunday if the day is a pleasant one?

Lovingly,

Marianne

Miss Ruth Workman Goes East For Marriage To Charles Hatch

NEXT Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gilbert Hatch, jr., will be at home at 248 Elm street, Montpelier, Vt., following their marriage Oct. 10 at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hatch, Lawrence, Mass. Mrs. Hatch is the former Miss Ruth Workman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Workman, 655 Maple street.

For the 12:30 ceremony she was attired in a black wool costume suit with persian lamb trim and an ice blue satin blouse with black accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

The ceremony was read by Dr. Charles W. Keirstead, pastor of the Trinity Congregational church, before the fireplace of the home which was banked with pine and white pompons.

The former Miss Workman attended Mansfield Senior high school, the Mansfield Business college and Miami university at Oxford. She had been employed at the Lumbermen's Mutual Insurance company, and was a member of Beta Sigma Phi.

Mr. Hatch, who has been living at Queen City park, Burlington, Vt., was graduated from Bowdoin college at Brunswick, Me., where he was a member of Sigma Nu fraternity. He also attended Boston college law school. He is affiliated with the Universal Credit company.

After the ceremony, which was attended by members of the immediate families, a breakfast was served at Fieldstone's, and an informal reception was held in the afternoon.

Mansfield Girl Becomes Bride of Canton Resident

At 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon Rev. E. G. Corwin officiated at the informal wedding ceremony at the First Methodist church, which united in marriage Miss Virginia Violet Valentine and Kenneth Ray Crow. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Valentine, 323 East Fourth street, was attired in a pansy rose velvet dress with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias. A graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, she has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forest R. Crow, Canton, attended the McKinley high school there, and is now employed at the Tappan Stove company.

Attending Miss Valentine was her sister, Vivian Viola, who wore a royal blue velvet dress with matching accessories, and a corsage of yellow roses. Peter Gabor was best man.

Later in the afternoon a wedding dinner was served to 14 guests at the bride's home. After Oct. 20 Mr. and Mrs. Crow will be at home at 115 Borneque place, S. W., Canton.

Robert B. Grudier, Betty A. Helfrich Wedded Saturday

The First English Lutheran church in Crestline was the scene of the wedding of Miss Betty Ann Helfrich and Robert B. Grudier at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy T. Helfrich, 313 North Seltzer street, Crestline, and Mr. Grudier is the son of Mrs. Helen Grudier, Park avenue west, and the late Lyman Grudier.

Rev. Simon A. Metzger, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony, and the couple was attended by the bride's cousin and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Marquart, of Bucyrus.

The former Miss Helfrich wore an afternoon frock of soldier blue silk crepe trimmed with velvet in a matching shade for her wedding. Her accessories also were of soldier blue, and she wore a corsage of pink rosebuds, tied with silver ribbon. Mrs. Marquart was attired in a brown crepe dress with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman rosebuds and pompons.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Grudier will make their home in an apartment at 132½ East Main street in Crestline. The bride is a graduate of Crestline high school and Mansfield Commercial institute and an employe of Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company. Mr. Grudier was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and also attended the Commercial instutite. He is employed here by the Standard Oil company.

Miss Catharene Anne Nerby, George Tobias Exchange Vows At Altar of St. Luke's Church; Will Reside In New York.

WHEN Miss Catharene Anne Nerby, 508 Forest avenue, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Pearl Nerby, Norwalk, exchanged the nuptial vows with George Schambs Tobias, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Tobias, 326 Park avenue west, at the altar of St. Luke's Lutheran church, her uncle, Dr. A. O. Fonkalsrud, officiated.

Mrs. Minnie Marks Cahall presided at the organ at 3:30 p. m. Saturday for the nuptials, and played selections from "Thais" by Massenet, "Liebestraum" by Liszt, "At Dawning" by Cadman, "O, Promise Me" by DeKoven, and "Because" D'Hardelot. In addition to the two wedding marches she played "O Perfect Love" during the ceremony.

The church altar was effectively decorated with baskets of white chrysanthemums, palms and candles. Miss Nerby was simply dressed in a light gray street frock with gun metal accessories, a strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and a corsage of gardenias, pink roses, delphinium and chrysanthemums.

Mrs. David Martin, Ashland, attired in a teal blue ensemble with matching turban, and black accessories, and a corsage of mixed flowers, served as matron of honor. Mr. Martin was best man.

Mrs. Nerby came from Newark to attend the wedding. She was attired in a soldier blue costume with black accessories, while the bridegroom's mother appeared in a rust frock with brown accessories. Both wore corsages of gardenias.

Later Dr. and Mrs. Fonkalsrud entertained 50 guests at a reception held at the Women's Club. Miss Marjorie Fonkalsrud, cousin of the bride, presided at the buffet table.

The bride received her B. A. degree from Oberlin college and was a member of Kappa Sigma. She has been employed at the Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company. Mr. Tobias holds both his B. S. and masters degree in chemical engineering from Ohio State. He is a first lieutenant in Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity.

After an eastern wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Tobias will be at home, after Nov. 1, in Rochester, N. Y., where Mr. Tobias is employed at the Eastman Kodak company.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hildum and Miss Elizabeth Hildum, Plainfield, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Beataick, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Schambs, Columbus; Mrs. Effie Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goon, and Miss Marilyn Goon, Toledo; Mrs. G. E. Hopkins, Misses Marilyn and Dorothy Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Nerby, New Philadelphia; Dr. Bessie B. Walling, Norwalk; Leslie Fonkalsrud, cousin of the bride, Billings, Mont., and Harry Hoiles, Bucyrus.
